Miss Golding Creates Quite a Sensation.

She Tells of the Doings in the Hospitals and Nunneries—Election in London—General Foreign Gossip.

London, Sept. 17.—In deference to public clamor the authorities of Douai, in the department of the Nord, France, are making inquiry as to what foundation there may be for the charges made by Miss Golding, an English nun, who recently ran away from a convent in that place.

The Catholics strenuously deny the truth of Miss Golding's statements, especially as to neglect and ill-treatment of sick sisters, and the threat to incarcerate her as a lunatic and also her intimation that there was some secret and terrible place of punishment connected with the institution.

Miss Golding's story has created much excitement, both in England and France. She is a young woman now of about middle age, of good family, and has a small private income, sufficient for her moderate support.

She looks as if she had been on an ascetic diet for years. She was in the convent about a quarter of a century. Catholic ecclesiastics claim that she must be hysterical. This is denied by her relatives. Miss Golding has not tried to make any capital out of her withdrawal from the convent, the alleged facts having become public through other sources.

Considerable interest is displayed in the coming election of a lord mayor of London to succeed Sir Joseph Savory. Alderman David Evans, the senior of those eligible for election, will probably be chosen. He is 42 years of age, a Welshman, a conservative and a member of the Church of England. He is engaged in manufacturing and has for many years been a member of the corporation.

The agitators for a distinct labor party profess to be greatly encouraged by Mr. Gladstone's denial that he has questioned the right of labor to form a party for itself.

On the other hand, in the same communication, Mr. Gladstone says he does not question the right of any class in the community to form a party, but he dryly adds that "if they all exercise the righ, we shall have a queer parliament." The trades unionists, however, propose to run labor candidates wherever they have a chance of winning, irrespective of the views of Mr. Gladstone or any one else.

A Berlin dispatch says the latest information leaves no doubt that the gathering of an immense Russian force in Bessarabia was intended as part of a plot to capture Constantinople by means of the Russian fleet and army.

This plot has miscarried, and matters go on with sublime porte much as ever, the country being bankrupt, and even the sultan having to curtail his household expenditures. The mention of the Mitylene incident was the first intimation to Russia that an English fleet was near the Dardanelles and prepared to act in case of necessity should Russia continue to send her vessels of war through the straits.

The pathetic spectacle of denying the Jews admission even to Palestine, was witnessed last week at the port of Jaffa. The exiled Hebrews had to go back, without being permitted to set a foot on shore. The Jews then applied at various ports, but were rejected at all of them. They were then conveyed to Cyprus.

In the city of Jerusalem the Turkish authorities are enforcing the regulations calculated to annoy the Jewish residents and induce them to leave.

Nevertheless, an English tourist, returning from Palestine, says the soil is ample for the support of a large population and that virtually no attempt is now made to work it. The same writer thinks the sultan would readily grant the Jews access to the Holy Land, provided he received a large sum of money and that he will not until then relax the exacting situation.

An Edinburg correspondent says that a proposition long meditated is soon to be carried out by which the relics of Scottish royalty, including the regalia now in Edinburg castle, will be placed in Holyrood palace, and the condition of the palace itself much improved. The furniture of Holyrood is much dilapidated.

RESIGNED AS CONGRESSMAN.

Saratoga, Sept. 17.—After his nomination Mr. Flower mailed the following letter to the secretary of state, Albany, N. Y.:

"Sir—I hereby tender my resignation as a member of the 52d congress from the 12th district of the state of New York to take effect to-day.

"Very respectfully,

"Roswell P. Flower."

The governor will issue a proclamation ordering the election at the general election in November of a successor to Mr. Flower.

WE COULD USE A BUSHEL.

Washington, Sept. 17.—The treasury department announces that it can now supply the demand for dimes which has been so great for several months. Large quantities of abraded silver have been ordered to be coined into dimes to supply the increased demand which arises when the Christmas trade begins.

CATHOLIC AFFAIRS.

Mixed Marriages Condemned by the Pope.

Rome, Sept. 17.—It is probable that the next consistory will be held within a few weeks. Cardinal Rotelli will receive the cardinal's hat, and new cardinals will be created as follows: Mgr. Sepiacci and Mgr. Ruffo Scilla, for Italy, and Mgr. Thomas, archbishop of Rouen, for France.

The date of the consistory depends upon the conclusions of negotiations with Hungary in regard to the occupation of the see of Prague, left vacant by the death of Cardinal Simor.

Investigations recently undertaken by direction of the pope are said at the vatican to show that mixed marriages between Catholics and Protestants usually have a bad effect on both faiths.

Several bishops have expressed the opinion to the holy see that such mixed marriages should be made more difficult. It is not yet known what decision the holy office will take on the subject. In any case, the question has been opened, and will probably soon be determined one way or the other.

BOILER EXPLOSION.

Lakeville, Minn., Sept. 17.—A frightful threshing engine boiler explosion occurred at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, instantly killing the fireman, John Johnson, and seriously scalding and injuring the tankman, Wm. Moiser. Several teams near the machine ran away, breaking wagons and destroying much property. The engine was blown one rod and the body of Johnson over two rods.

MAIL SERVICE.

San Francisco, Sept. 17.—R. J. Creighton, an agent for New Zealand, received a long cablegram from the postmaster-general of New Zealand announcing that the parliament of that country had authorized the renewal of the Australian mail service for three years, and requesting him to arrange certain details with the postmaster-general of the United States.

CAMPBELL IN SIDNEY.

Thousands Turn Out to Hear Him.

A Great Time for the Shelby Democrats.

The Campaign Opened and Every Evidence of Victory at the Fall Election.

Sidney, O., Sept. 17.—(Special)—The Democratic campaign of Ohio was opened, here at 6 o'clock this morning. As the sun climbed from behind the hill tops giving promise of a day that is perfect, it was greeted with salvos of artillery that echoed, perhaps, through the eleven counties that comprise the Miami valley and of which Shelby is one.

Certainly Sidney is proud of the auspicious occasion and as pleased are the thousands who for the first time visit it.

Decoration has run mad. Miles of it, mingled with boughs of cedar and costly flowers hang from every wall and the drives are arched everywhere.

Sidney was chosen to inaugurate the state campaign because it is in a region of rock-ribbed democrats who have worked early and late and never asked reward.

The county has 6,115 votes and 3,600 of them are democratic. Only once in a score of years has a democratic official failed of election in a county office, and then a republican sheriff was chosen by 168. The town has nearly 6,000 population, and it is named for that great light of chivalry, Sir Philip Sidney.

Seldom in its history have so many people been in it. The visitors reach over six thousand and they are still coming.

Governor Campbell and wife arrived at noon and were taken to the palatial home of their old neighbor, John Loughlin, on Mt. Campbell, named in honor of the governor.

Lieut. Governor Marquis came in at the same time and the others on the list are Hon. Roger Mills, of Texas; J. Dewitt Warner, of New York; A. W. Thurman, J. H. Outhwaite, of Columbus; Hon. John McMahon, of Dayton; C. W. Baker, of Cincinnati and others.

Representatives of all leading papers in Ohio are in attendance and Chicago representatives are looking at the opening.

At one o'clock, a great procession started through the streets. It was in five divisions, a mile long, and 20 minutes in passing a given point. The opening speech was by Governor Campbell. It was delivered in the spacious court yard, and was heard by at least 10,000 people.

Speakers' stands have been erected at three doors of the court house, and speaking will last until 10 p. m.

Mrs. Governor Campbell was tendered a reception by Mrs. John Loughlin, and Neal Post, No. 62, G. A. R., publicly honored its comrade, Governor Campbell, in like manner.

To-night the exercises will close with a grand pyrotechnical display. Governor Campbell looks exceedingly well.

CHOLERA ON A RAMPAGE.

Three Thousand Deaths in Asiatic Turkey.

The Sanitary Condition is Bad and Many People are Suffering for the Want of Food.

Boston, Sept. 17.—A report received at the custom house from the provinces of Asiatic Turkey says cholera is rapidly spreading there.

The number of deaths reported in the city of Aleppo from June to the middle of August was 950. There are no definite figures for the other cities, but they are enormous.

In the towns and villages where the pestilence is raging the huts are burned in order to disinfect them.

The Turkish officers are unjustly discriminating. The Moslems and Christians are allowed to leave the villages, but not the Jews. They are compelled to stay. It is fortunate that many are English subjects, since the British consul has interfered in many cases and prevented starvation.

The sanitary condition of the places affected is terribly imperfect. The total number of deaths from the scourge in the province is 3,154. Visitors are becoming alarmed and beginning to return to their homes.

BAY STATE REPUBLICANS

Massachusetts Names a Full State Ticket.

The Silver Question to be the Issue.

Henry Cabot Lodge, the Permanent Chairman, Talks on What His Party Has Done.

THE TICKET.

GOVERNOR...CHARLES H. ALLEN
LIEUT. GOV...WILLIAM H. HALE
SEC'Y OF STATE....WM. M. OLIN
TREASURER....GEO. A. MARDEN
ATTY GEN'L....A. E. PILLSBURY
AUDITOR.....JOHN W. KIMBALL

Boston, Sept. 17.—When Chairman Burdette, of the state committee, called the republican state convention to order in Tremont Temple yesterday he spoke to one of the largest gatherings that has ever attended the deliberations of the party delegates. The temporary organization was effected by the choice of Joseph O. Burdette as chairman and the usual committees were appointed.

When the committee had retired Hon. Elijah Morse, of Canton, presented a resolution upon the death of Hon. George B. Loring, expressing the loss sustained by the party in his death and extending sympathy to the family of the deceased.

The committee on permanent organization then reported, naming Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge as permanent chairman. Mr. Lodge was escorted to the chair and spoke as follows:

The speaker reviewed at great length the history and traditions of the republican party, its principles and its record in congress. The republican party stands as a bulwark against the movement for the free coinage of silver without previous international agreement. Free coinage is to-day a principle of the democratic party; you find it set forth in their Ohio platform and they believe that on that issue they can win. It is useless to say that the democrats of New England are as sound on the money question as the republicans.

The democrats of New England will be governed by their party while they stay in it. The amiable young men, whom they elected to congress last fall, talk as if they could control their party in this matter. They make the same mistake as the fly on the wheel. They do not make the wheel go round. The wheel goes round and carries them with it through dust and mud alike. They will all vote sooner or later for a free silver speaker, and they can give no more powerful aid to the free silver cause than by so doing, for it is the speaker who makes the committees, who leads the party, and who shapes legislation. They will do well if they can keep their immediate following straight on this question. It is not easy to prove that eighty cents do not make a dollar to a party, whose members in Boston, at least, believe that nine months make a year. Every man who believes in honest money and who is opposed to an inflated currency must vote with the republican party. If he does not he is giving direct support, whether he casts his vote in Massachusetts or in Kansas, for the principles which he abhors and for the business perils he dreads. The republican party has kept its pledges about the tariff. It was promised to revise, readjust and equalize duties, and to stop the frauds upon the revenue, and these things have been done.

The speaker then referred to the reciprocity and protection, coupled with the subsidies to American steamships, and in this, the party has kept its promise to develop commerce. Touching upon the expenditures of the last congress, he said: "If the democratic party is opposed to an increase in the expenditure for the efficiency and extension of the postal service the great governmental service which touches the convenience, the happiness, the business, and the homes of all the people of the United States, let them say so."

He then reviewed at length the uses to which the different appropriations were put. Reviewing the administration of President Harrison, he drew a favorable comparison of its work and the one preceding it, going into details as to various executive acts. Continuing, he spoke of the work of the state elements under Mr. Blaine in glowing terms. We welcome honest immigrants, but the time has come to exclude the vicious and the ignorant. To that work, now rising to a first place among public questions, the republican party is ready to address itself. We stand on the great issues with which we are now dealing as we have always stood. We will meet those of the future in the same spirit. As a national party we present to the voters our work of the last two years as a pledge for the work we will do in the coming time, and on this ground we ask support. The speaker referred to state matters at great length, criticising the democratic party. "A vote for Gov. Russell," said he, "is a vote for free silver, for democratic victory in Massachusetts this year will be taken to mean that Massachusetts prefers the democratic party with free silver to the republican party without it. A vote for Gov. Russell means free trade, not amendments to the tariff of 1890, but free raw materials for the benefit of New England, but naked free trade."

At the close of the speech the credentials committee reported and then ex-Gov. John D. Long placed Hon. W. W. Crapo's name in nomination for governor.

Gen. Cogswell placed that of Charles H. Allen in nomination for the same place.

The committee on resolutions then reported the platform, of which the following is a synopsis:

President Harrison and the administration are congratulated. The maintenance and extension of civil service reform are demanded. There is a strong demand for a federal law to insure fair elections, a free ballot, and an honest count. On the money question it is asserted that a true standard must be maintained, and the position and record of the democratic party are condemned. The tariff legislation of the last congress is approved, and its good results pointed out, particularly in the benefits from the removal of the duty on sugar and the reciprocity clauses. Extravagance in pensions is denied, and the assertion made that the party has fulfilled its promises to the loyal soldiers. It is urged that immigration be restricted, while honesty, intelligence, and industry are heartily welcome to America. The public school system is approved as the best way to unite the people, and to form a patriotic character in the young. Efficient legislation is demanded against the evils of liquor selling—legislation which shall be in line with the former principles of the party; that these principles be continued and every law enforced. The welfare of the workingman is declared to be the welfare of the state, and all just legislation is favored which will give the fruits of labor to all. The executive council is approved as a bar to arbitrary action.

The convention then proceeded to ballot. At 2:25, the ballot having been completed, a recess was taken until 3 p. m. to allow time for the counting of the ballots.

The convention assembled at 3:18 p. m., and the result of the ballot was announced as follows: Total number of votes cast, 1,231; necessary to choice, 616; Crapo, 514; Allen, 713; W. Hale, 1; Henry Cabot Lodge, 1; Frederick Greenhage, 1. Allen's nomination was made unanimous.

Hon. William H. Hale, of Springfield, was nominated for lieutenant-governor by acclamation.

William M. Olin, of Boston, was nominated by acclamation for secretary of state.

George A. Marden was renominated by acclamation for treasurer and receiver general.

Albert E. Pillsbury was nominated by acclamation for attorney-general.

The convention then proceeded to ballot for auditor of state, with the following result: Charles R. Ladd, 2; Henry E. Turner, 332; Gen. John W. Kimball, 403; J. Henry Gould, 59; Moses P. Palmer, 41; Eben C. Milliken, 132; W. H. Dupree, 43; Ledyard Bill, 1; Charles A. Gleason, 1. Mr. Turner moved that the nomination of Mr. Kimball be made by acclamation. The question was put and Mr. Kimball was so nominated with but a few dissenting voices.

The convention then adjourned sine die.

MRS. FAIR'S WILL.

Two Daughters Will Divide Six Millions.

San Francisco, Cal., September 17.—John Mackey and Mr. Day, the late Mrs. Fair's men of business, estimate the value of her estate at $6,000,000.

The will is not to be opened until after the funeral, but its provisions are known. To her two sons, James G. Fair, Jr., and Charles Fair, she leaves but a comparatively small amount. The great residue of the estate is to be divided equally between the two daughters, Mrs. Herman Oelrichs and Virginia Fair.

Their fortunes, like their brother's portions, are to be in the hands of trustees, and the income only is to go to them, at least for some years.

There are no bequests to churches or charitable institutions. This fact has occasioned considerable surprise, as it is known that during her lifetime Mrs. Fair was one of the most generous of the patrons of a large number of charities.

CROPS MOVING.

The nimble half-dollar of the present is larger to the eye of the western farmer than the big "samoleon" that is promised, for January crops are moving rapidly out in the Dakotas, despite the Alliance ukase.—Boston Globe.

THE CHINESE RIOTS.

Shanghai, Sept. 17.—China is preparing a proctocol to the Powers on the recent riots. It is believed the foreign ministers will not wait for this document, the preparation of which is likely to occupy several weeks.

WAS DEMOCRATIC DAY.

Governor Campbell Attends the State Fair.

Much Better, But Still Not Wholly Recovered.

The Gallant Candidate Shows How the High Protection Fence Destroys the Demand for Farm Products.

Columbus, O., Sept. 17.—Yesterday was democratic day at the state fair, and, the weather being all that could have been desired, the attendance numbered 15,000.

Gov. Campbell was down as the orator of the day, but as he did not arrive from the east until nearly 4 o'clock this afternoon Congressman Outhwaite was substituted for him, and for nearly two hours talked tariff to the assembled multitude.

On the arrival of the train bearing the governor he was met at the station by Chairman Neal, of the state committee, and Mr. Allen W. Thurman and driven direct to the fair ground. Mrs. Campbell going to their residence. Immediately on the governor's arrival Mr. Outhwaite gave away and introduced the governor, who was warmly received. While his appearance is much better than when he left here two weeks ago, yet he looks pale and shows clearly the suffering he has undergone.

After thanking the crowd for their patience in waiting so long for him, the governor said it was not his intention to make a speech, as he would do that at Sydney, to-morrow, and, besides, he must husband his strength. He would, however, make a few remarks, and began by saying that he was somewhat of a farmer, but that his farm work during the past few years had been confined principally to paying taxes and mortgages on his farm in the Big Miami Valley. He congratulated the agriculturists on the bountiful crops of the present year, which would bring money in their pockets to be diffused through the various branches of trade.

Touching on the tariff he said we have built up manufacturing establishments and placed a protective tariff on our manufacturers which compels us to pay higher prices for the goods manufactured at our very doors than is charged for the same articles shipped to and sold in Canada and other foreign countries.

He was not in favor of that kind of protection that would not give the Americans the same advantages as to prices as were given to purchasers in foreign countries.

Something was radically wrong when the Canadian, Mexican and South American farmer could purchase machinery made in this country at a lower price than our own farmers could.

He asserted that the high and tight protective fence built by the republican party would destroy the foreign demand for our farm products, as foreign nations would go elsewhere for their supplies, and said that but for the failure of crops this year abroad we would have only our home markets to depend upon.

It is the foreign demand that is making our productions command good prices, and he thought it unwise in every sense to so legislate as to force those on the other side of the water to purchase their breadstuffs in India and elsewhere. The governor talked about twenty minutes, and at the close of his remarks held a reception near the stand, meeting and shaking hands with hundreds of people.

A CHURCH IN THE COURTS.

Valuable Property Interests at Stake.

United Brethren in Christ Who Do Not Dwell in Unity Among Themselves

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 17.—The judges of the supreme court to-day listened to arguments in a case that involves a confession of religious faith and several million dollars of property.

The church of the United Brethren in Christ is divided against itself. The general conference held in York, Pa., May 13, 1889, adopted a revised confession of faith and an amended constitution, a vote of the members having been taken in November, 1888. In Wayne county was a prosperous congregation known as the Sugar Grove church, the trustees of which adhered to the old confession of faith. Those who refused to adopt the edict of the conference are called radicals, and those who follow the conference are known as liberals.

The liberals demanded the church property, but the radicals refused to give it up, and suit was instituted in the Wayne county circuit court. Judge Bundy, of New Castle, was trial judge, and the case occupied the court for nearly four weeks. Judge Bundy found for the liberals, and an appeal was taken. The United Brethren church has property in almost every county and state in the United States, and at Dayton is a large book publishing concern worth at least $250,000. It is a fight as to which side shall have control of this immense amount of property, as several similar suits to the one filed in Wayne county have been instituted in different states. The litigation has already cost thousands of dollars.

DESTROYED BY FIRE.

Tiffin, O., Sept. 17.—The frame dwelling of Lehro E. Downs, six miles south of this city, was totally destroyed by fire. Loss, $1,000; insurance, $300.

THE CHEROKEE STRIP.

An Important Decision Handed Down by Judge Green.

Washington, Sept. 17.—Secretary Noble has received a telegram from Gov. Steele, of Oklahoma territory, stating that Judge Green, of the United States district court, had handed down a long expected decision in the Cherokee "outlet" case, holding that if the Indians have ceased to use the land in litigation as an outlet it has reverted to the government, and the Cherokees can neither lease it nor use it for homes, farming or any other purpose, except as a passageway.

The decision is an important one as it determines the outcome of a suit which has been in progress in the territorial and district courts for several years and will play a big part in the opening of the new strip of territory for which the president is expected to make proclamation this week.

VALUE OF THEOSOPHY.

London, Sept. 17.—Replying to a person inquiring whether the discussion of theosophy ought to be permitted in workmen's clubs, where lectures and debates on religious subjects are tabooed, and whether such a discussion was likely to benefit workmen, Mr. Gladstone writes: "I shall not adopt language of determined disbelief in all manifestations, real or supposed, from the other world. They give me little satisfaction, but that does not warrant meeting them with a blank negative."

Mr. Gladstone evades the question of the value of theosophy but places it upon a distinctly religious plane as far as discussion is concerned.

RAIDED THE CAMP.

Wauseon, Sept. 17.—(Special)—Last Saturday John Mitchell, a tramp, went through the camp of the teamsters working on the new railroad near Fayette, and stole several hundred ivory rings, with which the teamsters had decorated their horses.

They were found in his possession yesterday, and he was locked up on a charge of grand larceny, the goods being valued at $46.

He was given a hearing before 'Squire Knapp and bound over to court.

OUR PROGRESS BARRED.

Striking Example of the Effect of the McKinley Bill.

The Treasury Officials Holding Conferences and Even Listening to Such a Man as Butterworth.

Washington, Sept. 17.—In Secretary Foster's office in the treasury department, from which representatives of the press were excluded, a conference was held yesterday between treasury officials and foreign representatives on matters pertaining to the world's fair exhibits.

There were present: Secretary Foster, Assistant Secretary Nettleton, Assistant Secretary Spaulding, Hon. Benj. Butterworth, Moses P. Handy and R. G. McCormick, world's fair commissioners; Sir Henry Wood and Sir James Dredge, representing Great Britain; Herr Wermuth, representing Germany, and Major Frederick Brackett who is to be stationed in London in the interest of the world's fair.

The conference was of an informal character. The subject discussed was the simplifying of the treasury custom regulations, so as to afford foreign exhibitors the greatest facility, with the least possible friction consistant with safety to the revenues, to ship their exhibits to the United States for exhibition at the world's fair.

The details of the present regulations were discussed at length and several suggestions were made by Sir Henry Wood and Herr Wermuth which will be incorporated into a supplemental circular letter to be issued by the treasury department regulating the importation of world's fair exhibits. It is the idea of the American commission to so regulate the regulations governing the free importation of articles for exhibition at the exposition as to permit exhibits to be shipped from foreign countries direct to the fair grounds in Chicago, without the interposition of custom or consular officers on either side of the ocean.

The exhibits are to be accompanied by invoices and each box is to be stamped with the flag of the country from which it is sent. The conference lasted from 11 o'clock to noon.

HIS MIND GAVE WAY.

Commander Kellogg Placed in An Asylum.

Washington, Sept. 17.—Commander Augustus G. Kellogg, of the United States navy, lately on duty at the league island navy yard, was yesterday removed to St. Elizabeths asylum for treatment for brain troubles.

A board of physicians who had examined his case reported that his condition unfit him for active service. The present trouble is said to be overwork.

It will be remembered that it was Commander Kellogg's vessel, the Kearsarge, that was to take Mr. Douglass to Hayti upon his appointment as minister to that place.

Commander Kellogg declined taking him on the grounds of ill-health and was relieved from the command of the vessel. Later he was in Haytien waters and rendered gallant services in releasing the merchant vessel which had been captured by the Haytien authorities.

WANT DIVORCES.

MURDER ON THEIR HANDS

Two Boys Charged With a Terrible Crime.

They Pushed Their Young Friend Into the Water,

Held Him Down Until He Was Dead, Then Took His Clothes to a Pawn Shop and Realized on Them.

Liverpool, Sept. 17.—The details of a horrible murder committed by two boys, both of them about 8 years of age, have just come to light in this city.

Two lads, named respectively Crawford and Shearon, were arrested here. They were charged with murdering one of their comrades, a boy also about 8 years of age.

Upon being taken to the police station Crawford and Shearon confessed to the crime. They said that they wanted to steal the clothes of the murdered boy, and so pushed him into the water, intending to drown him.

When the poor little fellow managed to scramble out Crawford and Shearon pushed him in again, and then Crawford went down on his knees, and kneeling on the drowning boy's head, held him down under water until he finally ceased struggling.

The two young murderers then watched the dead boy for a considerable length of time to see if he stirred and then they stripped the body of the clothes, dried them, and afterwards obtained some money upon them at a pawnshop.

This led to their identification and eventual arrest.

SIXTIETH O. V. I.

Delaware, O., Sept. 17.—The Sixteenth regiment O. V. I. held their fourth annual reunion in this city, Tuesday and Wednesday. The first meeting was held at Glenwood Lake. Judge C. M. McElroy and other comrades addressed the soldiers. P. P. Ingalls, past president, presided. Judge J. H. Warnock, of Urbana; Col. Clark, and others addressed the boys.

The meeting yesterday was held at the G. A. R. hall. At noon the ladies of the relief corps gave the regiment a free dinner in the room of the adjutant, J. F. Curran. The reunion next year will be held the second Tuesday in September, at Berea.

The following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Capt. J. F. Curran; vice presidents, E. M. Reublin, of Berea; Mrs. P. Hines of Royalton; secretaap, O. W. Hayner, of Hudson, Mich.; historian, P. P. Ingalls.

HOBOKEN PUGS FALL OUT.

New York, Sept. 17.—The directors of the Granite association, of Hoboken, held a meeting here last night at which Jere Dunn and Dick Roche, the leading spirits of the association, withdrew. This means practically the disbandment of the organization. Dissatisfaction among the directors over the recent fight held at the association rooms between McAuliffe and Gibbons, led to this result.

SMALLPOX ON THE PHAROS.

New York, Sept. 17.—The steamship Pharos, Captain W. Wilcox, arrived at Watson's stores, Brooklyn, yesterday morning. She was detained at quarantine, when she reached here on Saturday, on account of having a case of smallpox on board. HENRY COUNTY ROMANCE.

Love Once More Smiles at the Obstructionists.

Mr. Allie Yeager and Miss Long Take a Trip to Michigan and are Now Man and Wife.

Adrian, Sept. 17.—(Special)—The good people of Napoleon will be somewhat surprised to know that Mr. Allie Yeager, one of her most popular young men and his sweetheart, a Miss Long of the same place, were married at Adrian this p. m.

The young people have been keeping company for some time, but the fact of their youth, both being but 20 years of age, was the reason given by the lady's parents for the refusal to consent to the union.

Miss Long has been visiting relatives at Antwert, and left that place at 6 o'clock this morning for the Paulding fair. She stopped off, however, at Cecil, where her lover had died at midnight, the night before. They immediately took the train for Adrain, and were married, as stated, and love again laughs at her triumph over barriers.

Both are young and prominent society people, and have every prospect of overcoming future difficulties as gracefully as they have the present one.

SUED THE RAILROAD COMPANY.

Tiffin, O., Sept. 17.—(Special)—A suit was commenced to-day to recover $500 from the Baltimore & Ohio Railway company in favor of A. Goodyear, as the next friend of George E. Reed, a minor. Reed claims that he had paid his fare from Bloomdale to Fostoria, that he was put off the train one and one-half miles west of Fostoria and that he was choked, kicked and beaten and subjected to injuries and indignities which damaged him to the extent of the sum demanded in his petition. The case will probably come up at the next term of court.

CLAIMS SELF DEFENSE.

Bucyrus, O., Sept. 17.—George Jones, who is confined in the county jail on a charge of the murder of Charles Douglass at Crestline, in 1887, has made a full confession. He claims that he killed Douglass in self defense, and hopes to gain a lenient sentence from the court.

HE HAD A CLOSE CALL,

President Polk Escapes Tar and Feathers.

The Old Soldiers Remember His Brutal Treatment of Union Prisoners.

Wichita, Ks., Sept. 17.—All arrangements were made here yesterday to tar and feather L. L. Polk, national president of the alliance, but through the intervention of the police and the old soldiers the movement was frustrated.

The veterans here are against Polk for his treatment of union prisoners during the war and many of them left the alliance camp yesterday vowing vengeance.

Polk, it is alleged, was governor of the Salisbury, N. C., prison during the war, and is said to have been guilty of many cruelties to the soldiers confined in the prison.

THE DAYS OF FORTY-NINE

A Survivor of the Ill-Fated Donner Party Tells

The Tales of Horrible Suffering and Death.

Juan Baptiste Truvido Tells of the Time When a Whole World Looked Toward the Golden Gate.

San Francisco, Sept. 17.—Up at Santa Roso the other day a correspondent discovered another survivor of the famous Donner party, who crossed the plains in 1849. The old gentleman was Juan Baptiste Truvido, one of the survivors of the ill-fated Donner party, whose heroism saved the lives of many members of his party, but who has been almost entirely ignored by the hands that have guided the lines of history.

"It is true I am one of the few left of the unfortunate band," he said. "and I might give you columns of facts concerning it, but it would be too much perhaps." When urged to repeat some of the stories of the ill-starred company, he brightened up and related the following:

"My name is Juan Baptiste Truvido, and I am 60 years old. My parents were of French birth and I was born east of the Rockies, not far from the Arkansas river. I spent my young days in the mountains and the plains and became, like most of boys in those circumstances, an expert hunter and horseman. When Fremont and Kit Carson came along on their way to California, I joined them and was with them until they reached the headwaters of the Green river. It was about that time I fell in with "Jim" Hedgepath, who lives in this county. After leaving Fremont's party I went to Fort Bridger, Utah, and remained there until July, 1846. The famous Donner party that had started from Springfield, Ill., in the spring of 1846, was at the fort and preparing to strike out to California. A new route had been laid out, or opened up rather, by L. W. Haskins, called the "Haskins cut-off," and as it was said to shorten up the distance, the party were anxious to go that way.

"Everybody familiar with the history of the expedition knows that if the company had followed the old Fort Hall road all would have been well, but owing to the advice of friends they took what they thought was the shortest way. I was sent along by the people at the fort as a guide and guard, and was with the Donners until rescued at Donner Lake.

"It was while struggling through the cut-off that the party was joined by W. F. Graves and wife and their eight children, Jay Fosdick and John Snyder. Snyder was the man who was afterwards killed in a quarrel by James Reed, who was one of the originators of the Donner party.

"Well, we struggled along through the mountains, and after we had left Salt Lake a long ways in the rear things went fairly well until we got to Truckee. The party became divided by a terrible storm and never came together again until the rescue came at Donner's lake. The Reeds and Graves people were in the advance party, while the Donners, George and Jacob and their families, were in the party left behind. Our little band worked bravely on until we came to Alder Creek Valley, where we had to stop, it being impossible to go further. The snow came on with blinding fury, and being unable to build cabins we put up brush sheds, covering them with limbs from the pine trees.

"It was about the first of November, I think, that we went into that camp of snow and suffering, and we remained there until the latter part of February, when the Sutter party rescued us."

The old gentleman's story of the sufferings at his camp were graphic, indeed. At one time he was the only one in the party who was able to do anything. George Donner had an injured hand and had been laid up for some time. Death stared them in the face, and it was only by the most heroic efforts on the part of Baptiste that they all did not freeze to death.

He kept the fires going through the long, weary hours of the night and worked with might and main to keep the little colony warm. Starvation then were face to face with, and Baptiste secured the meat that kept them alive with the greatest difficulty.

One day he had to kill a cub, and his escape from the infuriated bear mother was almost miraculous. In the number that lay huddled in the miserable camp were George Donner, wife and five children, Jacob Donner, wife and three children, a man named Snoemaker, Jim Smith, Mrs. Wolfinger, one Rheinhart, a Dutchman whom he called Charley, himself and two or three others whose names he could not remember. Sickness, the pitiless storms and starvation relieved Jacob Donner and wife and child, Rheinhart, Shoemaker, Smith and the Dutchman of their sufferings, and when the relief party—which Baptiste says consisted of two Indians and a white man, Rhodes, poorly mounted—reached them there was a mere handful of wretched, almost starved people left. George Donner's five children and two of Jacob Donner's children were among the saved.

Baptiste lives at Tomales Bay and is a widower. He has three sons, and they make their living by fishing. He says that he never recovered from the effects of that four months' experience and that half of the story has never been told. No human flesh was eaten in the camp where he was; that occurred in the camp of the other party, which was only about eight miles away, but which, of course, they knew nothing about. Not even a reference has been made to the noble part the old Frenchman took in saving the lives of his fellow-sufferers in anything that has been published, and it fills one with sadness to hear him speak of it.

"They have all been written about, but not one word for little Baptiste; he can wear his old life out unnoticed," said he. He had with him photographs of Mrs. Francis E. Wilder, nee Donner, taken in 1887, and one of Mrs. S. O. Houghton, nee Donner, taken about the same time. "The girls they always treat me good and never forget me," he said, while looking at the pictures, "but the world cares nothing about little Baptiste." He is in extremely poor circumstances, and it seems wrong that one who through the awful days and nights of the winter of '46-47 cared for and saved so many of his fellows should be allowed to want for anything, much less to be remembered by those who fain would chronicle the deeds of our heroic pioneers.

APPROPRIATE, INDEED.

A Farce Comedy Company Booming McKinley.

Fulton County Republicans Indulging in the Usual Brass Band Argument.

Correspondence of the Bee.

Wauseon, Sept. 17.—On with the opera, let the tin canes be unconfined.

The McKinley club has perfected an organization and their first investment will be tin canes. They have already a supply of the tin buttons made in Wales by Welshmen and imported to this country. As a means of raising funds to pay the expense the comic opera Iolanthe will be produced at Scott's opera house in a short time by local talent. This unique way of raising funds for campaign purposes should at once be impressed upon the state committee so that they can have comic opera produced in every part of the state. It will not only produce an immense revenue, but the tin canes and buttons will be all the arguments necessary to forever close the mouth of any impertinent democrat who doubts the high protective doctrine. Such arguments as the canes and tin buttons make are certainly irrefutable, and when backed by comic opera for campaign purposes, are enough to drive every democratic speaker from the stump. No doubt but what comic opera will be much better appreciated by the masses than the illogical and untruthful statements made by Major McKinley and other republican speakers, and if properly embellished by tin canes and buttons, would probably be the success of the theatrical season. Another benefit to the republican party would be that the major could perhaps take a leading part, and could thus drop the discussion of the tariff, as was requested by the republican editors at Columbus a few weeks ago. By all means stick to comic opera, tin canes and buttons; their effect upon the minds of intelligent American citizens will be greater than reason, truth or logic.

The opposite from the McKinley club is the Tariff Reform club of Fulton county, which from a few members has steadily grown till its members now reach in the hundreds.

It is supported, financially, by voluntary contributions, there being no entrance fee or dues of any kind.

Its meetings are well attended and the time is taken up by the discussion of the principal questions of interest to the voters of to-day.

Not only is the tariff in all its phases intelligently discussed, but the finance, government loans, government control of the railroads and telegraph systems, national banking system, condition of the farmer, manufacturer, laboring man and many other subjects are considered.

Documents, papers, pamphlets, etc., are distributed so that every man can study the questions of vital interest to the lovers of a republican form of government.

The few democrats in this hot bed of republicanism will do the best they can by making this an educational campaign as opposed to tin canes, tin badges, tin buttons and comic opera, and with the Australian ballot law which will effectually shut off the Quay-Dudley stripe of politicians from doing their nefarious business, it is hoped that the democrats of Fulton will be found in greater numbers than ever before.

LONGED FOR NOTORIETY.

Ava None Other Than Diss De Bar.

So Says the Brother of the Woman.

She Has a Scrap Book Filled With Newspaper Clippings of Her Wiles and Victims.

Louisville, Sept. 17.—Miss Vera Ava is Madame Diss DeBarr, the famous spook priestess. Such is the opinion of George C. Solomon, the brother of the woman.

Mr. Solomon is a resident of Louisville, and stands high socially and in the business world of the Falls City. The connection is one for which he has reason to feel nothing but regret, and he reluctantly spoke of the matter at all. To a reporter, however, he said:

"I have read the descriptions of the woman at Cincinnati and am as positive as I am of my existence that it is my sister, Madame Diss DeBar."

The scar she bears, he says, was received in a fall from a car in Kansas City, and the marks of identification have long been land marks of her countenance, which, with all her skill, she cannot efface.

Mr. Solomon saw his sister last in New York last winter, and although her conduct has long since alienated her family, they have always seen that as long as she was content to live quietly she should want for nothing.

Diss DeBarr is a woman of remarkable mental endowments, but even in her youth showed the waywardness which has finally made her the most remarkable adventuress of the age. She is far from insane, and is not a criminal in her instincts, but has a mania for notoriety and a passion for deception which has become the strongest force of her character.

Her escapades would fill volumes, and, indeed, she has 18 scrap books as large each as Webester's dictionary, filled with newspaper clippings about herself. In all her adventures she has promptly received the aid of her family whenever she got into difficulty, although she berates in the strongest language any member of her family who crosses her path, as the presence of any one who knows her cuts short her career of deception.

She seems to have a peculiar penchant for the Catholic church as a field for her operation, and has been engaged in many escapades similar to the present one.

It has not been many years since she caused a scandal in Cleveland, Ohio, by accusing Bishop Gilmour, one of the best known prelates of his day, of attempting to outrage her.

As soon as it was known a member of her family hastened to Cleveland. He found the bishop in a panic of actual fear, as the boldness and ingenuity of the woman's falsehoods staggered even his efforts to maintain his character. The woman was removed and the matter hushed up.

Soon after a telegram came to her relatives that she had been arrested at the Becket house in Dayton, where she was masquerading as a nun. Again she was rescued and a scandal stopped.

She then came to Cincinnati, and by the remarkable fascination of her mind gained a strong hold on Bishop Purcell, then the idol of his church, and was intrusted by him with a large sum of money to expend in charities. Her relatives again came to the rescue, exposed the fraud and forced her to disgorge. Soon after this she came within an ace of being mobbed in the Irish settlement of Cincinnati down on the C., H. & D. railroad, where she was masquerading as a sister of charity, and was found up by getting drunk. The police were required to rescue her from the angry Catholics.

When the Marsh affair came up in New York her people were again called on, and made strenuous efforts to have her declared insane or in some way restrained. She was sent to Blackwell Island, but was soon released by Dr. McDonald, and the world was again before her. Meanwhile her two little girls, one of whom was a child she had stolen or picked up somewhere, were taken from her, and now in a safe place and cared for by her relatives.

Last year Diss DeBar lived quietly in New York, but she longed for notoriety and the display of her peculiar talents. She carefully read all concerning the Cronin case, and it is believed that this inspired the visit to Chicago and the developments which have followed.

Her family have grown weary of pursuing the ignis fatuus of Diss DeBarr's reform. She will allow them to exercise no control over her, and they would welcome any action of the authorities which would give the family a right to control her, or any voluntary act of hers which would enable them to keep her from public gaze. They are ready at any time to give her any aid, either in money or influence, which may save her, but they cannot control her, and she scorns all interference.

TWO FOR SHERMAN.

Foraker Will Have to Get a Hustle on Himself.

Steubenville, O., Sept. 17.—The republican senatorial convention for the Twentieth and Twenty-second districts, comprising the counties of Jefferson, Belmont, Harrison and Columbiana, nominated Chas. P. Snyder, of Columbiana, and J. M. Nichols, of Belmont, as candidates for the state senate. Mr. Nichols is the present senator for the old Belmont-Harrison district.

The Foraker people realizing that the Sherman forces were entirely too strong for them in numbers, gracefully submitted to the inevitable, and Snyder and Nichols were nominated without opposition, although an agreement was reached by the two factions whereby the resolutions adopted would indorse no candidate for United States senator.

At the mention of Blaine's name the convention went wild with enthusiasm. Both nominees were for Sherman for the senate. In order to pacify Gov. Foraker's adherents no mention was made of Honest John's name.

WILL MAKE ROME HOWL

Ex-Friar Dent Takes His Case Into Court.

He Fights Against Being Expelled From His Order.

Crimes, Vices and Scandals Charged, by Innuendo, in a Lot of Questions Which the Court Excluded.

New York, Sept. 17.—The case of the Rev. Father Francis Dent against the Society of the Friars Minor of the Order of St. Francis came before the general term of the supreme court, of Brooklyn, on an appeal by Father Dent from a ruling of Justice Cullen.

The Rev. Father Dent, who was deposed as a Franciscan monk four years ago, having appealed to the highest Catholic authorities in vain, is now endeavoring to obtain redress in a civil court.

From 1861 to 1886 Father Dent was a member of the Order of Franciscan Friars. In the latter year he received a decree of expulsion, issued by the Sacred Congress of Bishops and Regulars. He appealed to the General of the order, to the Propaganda and to Pope Leo XII., all of whom ignored his appeal.

Then he took his case into the Supreme Court in September of last year, and asked to be reinstated in the order and to receive such support as is accorded to members.

In his complaint he denied that he had been cited to appear for trial before the ecclesiastical court which sat upon his case in Rome, or that he was represented by counsel.

He further asserted that he had turned into the society, upon taking its vows and afterward, $7,000, and that he was entitled under the laws of the Roman Catholic church to a home in one of the houses of the Franciscan Order and maintenance according to his rank as a priest, and to all his legitimate expenses during the term of his natural life.

Justice Bartlett, on December 27, 1890, issued a commission to Augustus O. Bourne, United States consul to Italy, to examine under oath Father Bernardine, late minister general; Father Mauritius, late secretary of the missions, and Giuseppe da Trento, of Rome, in behalf of the defendants, the Franciscan Friars.

Counsel failed to settle the interrogatories to be made by common consent, and on April 29, 1891, Justice Cullen allowed all of the interrogatories of defendant's counsel, but denied many of those of the Rev. Father Dent. Therefore the priest appealed to the general term. Argument was made yesterday on both sides and decision was reserved.

The cross interrogatories that Father Dent desired to have answered by Father Bernardine are accusatory in nature and relate to matters that are ultra sensational. Among the queries which Justice Cullen ruled out were Nos. 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62 and 64.

The first of these are as follows:

Did you not bear that Father Dent accused you of being the real murderer of Father Benvinuto, who died of a broken heart soon after his deposition?

Did you not hear that Father Dent accused you of being influenced in your official conduct by gifts in money from your subjects?

Did you not receive remittances in money from Father Charles Da Nazzano, from Father Leo Da Saracena and from other enemies of Father Dent in America?

The fifty-second question is too scandalous to be quoted verbatim, but among other things it asks whether Father Bernardine does not know that Father Dent had accused him of drunkenness and much graver vices, of exacting money and breaking the seal of confession, of permitting priests to be secretly married and of allowing them to use church money for the support of their children.

The fifty-third, fifty-fourth, fifty-fifth, fifty-sixth, fifty-eighth, fifty-ninth, sixtieth, sixty-first, sixty-second, sixty-third and sixty-fourth questions are as follows:

Were you not accused to the pope of aiding the famous Jesuit, Father Curci, in his rebellion, and did not Father Dent offer to prove by witnesses and documentary evidence that you got 2,000f. from Giuseppe Giglioni for that purpose on account of your disappointed ambition?

Was it not commonly reported in Rome that you were to become, a cardinal and are not ex-minister generals usually made bishops?

Do you swear that the charges against you had nothing to do with keeping you from being a cardinal or a bishop?

Why did you not put Father Dent on trial as soon as you obtained the alleged rescript or during the nine following months that he remained in Rome?

Why did you wait six long years after the publication of Father Leo's marriage before proceeding to try and expel Father Dent?

Do you swear that Father Leo Da Saracena did not marry or attempt marry?

Do you swear that none of your Franciscan priests in America ever took wives?

Did you pardon any of them after marriage?

Was Father Leo the one whom you pardoned after taking a wife and abandoning her? If not, who was he?

What law gave you a right to license a wrong done a woman or to pardon it without due reparation?

Rev Father Dent, who appeared in person, in his brief in the appeal to the general term says that the witnesses are Roman ecclesiastics of high standing, and that they may be imbued with the views of Roman dignitaries on the rights of the civil power as well as the doctrine of Roman theologians on the obligations of an oath.

He contends that Roman Catholic canonists and casuists hold oaths not to be binding under certain circumstances, and vehemently pleads that his interrogatories may be allowed.

HAS NOT GONE TO SLEEP.

The Administration is Wide Awake.

Secretary Foster Says the Keystone Investigation is Being Pushed by the Government.

Washington, Sept. 17.—Secretary Foster in speaking relative to the pending investigations of the affairs of the Keystone National bank, said the impression had got abroad that the treasury department itself was not conducting an inquiry into the matter. The two experts who were appointed by the treasury department at the request of the mayor, he said, were paid out of the appropriations made by congress for investigations of this character. That amount had been almost exhausted, but the department had signified its willingness of recommending to congress the appropriation of an additional sum to reimburse the people of Philadelphia if they advance the money to continue the investigation. As a matter of fact, said the secretary, the department is, of is own accord, and through its own agencies, conducting a most thorough and searching inquiry into the bank's affairs, independent of all the other investigations that are being made.

HELD UP THE TRAIN.

St. Louis, Sept. 17.—A dispatch from Muskogee, I. T., says: The Missouri, Kansas & Texas southbound passenger train was held up and the express car robbed at Lelita, four miles north of Wagoner. They dumped the small iron chest, which contained $2,500, out of the express car door, and breaking it open, took the entire amount. They made no attempt to rob the passengers, and there was but one shot fired.

FOSTORIA GOSSIP.

Attempted Suicide—Grand Jury Report—General.

Fostoria, O., Sept. 17.—(Special.)—Frank Magrat, a young unmarried man from Holgate, attempted suicide in a saloon by the strychnine route. He took an over dose, which vomited him and saved his life. No cause for the deed is assigned by him.

Ralph Day, the delegate sent by the Fostoria stationary engineers of this city to the national convention at Omaha, was elected by the convention to be chairman of the committee on education.

The result of the grand jury's consideration of the case of Jno. Fruth, of this city, for the murder of Jacob Stakesberry at Ada a few weeks ago, was an indictment for murder in the second degree, and his trial set for September 28.

It is not likely that the Calcine Glass works will be rebuilt, as this is their second fire within the present year, and the splendid new plant was mainly erected by the insurance money carried on the other, while the new one carried no insurance, because it was deemed fire proof, being built all of iron.

The heat of the escaped glass, which flooded the floors, melted the iron like lead, and the whole affair collapsed without the need of wood in the structure to begin the destruction.

The entire loss exceeds $25,000, which was all home capital. A host of men will be out of employment from the present fire.

CALLS IT READJUSTMENT.

Conger's New Name for Cutting Down Wages,

But the Workmen Cannot See It in the Light Pictured by the Protectionist.

Akron, Sept. 17.—Col. A. L. Conger was seen this evening and asked concerning the dispatch telegraphed to the BEE from Canton to the effect that a 33⅓ per cent. cut had been made in the Akron works of Whitman & Barnes company. In a dictated interview he said:

"The statement from Canton is untrue and misleading in the extreme. While we are not advertising details of our business through the public press, we are not adverse to correcting errors. For a number of years past at the end of each season, which has just closed this year, we have readjusted wages before entering upon the next season's business.

"That is simply what we have done this year. So far as the men in our works are concerned the reduction is light. The average is less than 10 per cent.

"Just at present, as you well know, farmers throughout the country are somewhat disturbed and feel that they should buy agricultural implements at lower rates than heretofore, and manufacturers of those implements all along the line are seeking to meet their wishes as nearly as possible.

"With other establishments we have been compelled to make readjustment. I think the Whitman & Barnes company for the last twelve years has paid higher wages than any company of the kind in the country, and the coming year will be no exception.

"The readjustment this year commences with my own salary as president and reaches every officer and employe of the company and all are put on a basis of merit without regard to favor, as our board of directors viewed the situation."

"But, colonel, men somehow can't see any difference between one of these newfangled 'readjustments,' as you call it, and an out and out cut. What is it?"

"The two are essentially different. For instance, some men may be earning fair wages and in the readjustment their pay may not be reduced at all, while another man may be doing piece work, which, if crowded, would pay him from $2.50 to $4.50 per day, accordingly as he pushed the work.

"In all well regulated shops, run largely by piece work, the work starts at one end of the shop and is generally completed at the other. I have known cases where men would be receiving very high wages in one department and would hold back their work in order that the weekly output might not show such a high average.

"This would inconvenience those ahead of them who would necessarily have to be idle a portion of the time. These matters are all ciphered out during the year and then for the next season the work of the whole shop is readjusted, by beginning to put all on an equality so far as possible."

It has not yet been officially announced but another "readjustment" will be experienced by the men in the Buckeye shops when the new season starts up. This will affect 600 men, while the Whitman & Barnes "readjustment" affects as many more.

TURNING THEM OUT.

President Harrison Sets a Batch of Criminals Free.

Washington, Sept. 17.—President Harrison acted on several applications for pardons to-day. In the case of Wm. R. Marshall, sentenced to two years in the Ohio penitentiary for violation of the pension laws, he commuted the sentence to one year's actual imprisonment.

In the case of Charles Schootky, sentenced to six years in the Southern district of Georgia for counterfeiting, the sentence was commuted to two years' imprisonment.

In the case of John Marsh, of Virginia, sentenced to two months' imprisonment and a fine of $100, a full pardon was granted.

In the case of G. L. Armstrong, of Tennessee, sentenced to two years' imprisonment in the Ohio penitentiary for violating the postal laws, a pardon was granted to take effect after 12 months of actual imprisonment.

The president denied the application for a pardon in the case of Wm. Zang, of Illinois, who was sentenced to one year's imprisonment for violating the postal laws.

ORTH STEIN'S STORY.

Henry A. Lacy, of the Boody, Was His Chum.

They Played Together as Boys in Lafayette.

Traits and Characteristics of the Noted Swindler as a Boy and Youth—Confession of His Crimes and History of His Career.

Mr. Henry A. Lacy, cashier at the Boody house, was the close friend and school companion of the noted swindler Orth Stein, with whose notorious history and eventful career as a swindler, forger and murderer, the country has rang for a week past.

Mr. Lacy, speaking with a Bee this morning, gave a very interesting history of young Orth as a boy and school comrade in Lafayette, Ind., where both were born and reared.

"We were the most intimate of friends," he began, "and there was no boy in Lafayette who had such brilliant prospects. His home surroundings were such as to fit him for a high and brilliant career. He had a most delightful home. No luxury was lacking to make it pleasant. His father and mother were both unusually intellectual and gave their two children, Orth and Evaline, a home training that set them far in advance of their respective classes at school. We lived close together, and almost every Saturday I spent with the Steins.

"His sister, by the way, was gifted with great talents as an artist and poetess, and she has won quite a reputation in both branches. Orth was also gifted. He was of a peculiarly nervous temperament, sensitive to a degree, and with the strangest and strongest combination of good and bad that I ever knew in any human being. He was a boy of very generous impulses and again extraordinarily revengeful and vindictive. To illustrate, he would do anything in the world for me, while across the street lived a little Jewish boy whom Orth fairly hated, and he never missed an opportunity of scourging the little fellow. I remember having a bow and arrow and Orth and I would go pig hunting. The arrows, however would not stick in the pigs and so Orth secured an air gun with these little steel bullets you see in shooting galleries. Orth took a great delight in killing a pig full of the bullets. It was cruel, but he seemed to delight in it.

"I remember very well the day he left Lafayette for Leadville. He had been working as a reporter on the Lafayette Courier, and he came into the the office where I was working—the office of the Lake Erie & Western—and Mr. Smith, the agent, who looked upon Orth as a good deal of a boy, said: 'Orth, Leadville is a pretty tough place and it mightn't do you any harm to carry a revolver.

"Orth wore a long overcoat and putting his hand down each of the side pockets he pulled out two huge self-cocking bulldog revolvers. "I guess I know what I am doing," he said. "I know how to use them too."

"This was the last I ever saw of Orth. Of course we kept track of him more or less, but his family seemed never to learn anything of him. The first blow killed his father and almost killed his mother and sister."

A few days ago the Bee published the full confession of Stein. It was a pitiful story.

The tale of his capture in Atlanta is as follows:

A month ago J. B. Raymond applied to the Constitution for employment, and until Saturday, one week ago, filled a position upon that paper.

On the afternoon of that day he left the city to accept a place on a New York paper at a salary of $45 a week.

On Sunday evening, just about dark, a man entered the Armstrong and registered as "John Norton, Savannah." He had no valise, but carried a light overcoat over his left arm. He asked the night clerk, Mr. Boder, what time the next train left for Atlanta. The clerk said at 2:45 o'clock, and the man said he would like to be called at that hour. He then paid for supper and a room. He asked Mr. Cooper, who was standing behind the desk, to have the gas lit in the writing room. It was lit and the stranger forthwith walked rapidly into the room and began to write a letter. A few minutes later a gentleman entered the writing room and sat down by the side of the man who was busy with his letter. The gentleman, was Mr. T. E. Scantlin, of Lafayette, Ind., a newspaper man well known in the west and northwest, asked what day in the month it was. The busy letter-writer looked up from his paper, in a preoccupied manner, and said:

"I think it is the sixth." As he spoke those words their eyes met, when the man without baggage shrank back in his chair as white as a sheet. Turning his back upon the gentleman, he said in an altered voice: "At least I think this will be the sixth, because I know to-morrow will be the seventh." At the same time he turned over the sheet of paper upon which he had been writing. He then began to write his letter over again with pretended composure in an entirely different hand. Mr. Scantlin closely observed his companion write his letter and then went upstairs to supper. A reporter happened to sit at the table with Mr. Scantlin, who during supper, said in a quiet manner that one of the most noted criminals in the United States was then in the hotel.

A short while afterward a tall, slender young man, with dark hair, wearing spectacles, got up from a table near by and walked leisurely out of the room and down one of the corridors, where he soon vanished.

"That's the man," said Mr. Scantlin. "Who is he?"

Mr. Scantlin, however, declined positively to say anything more about him, repeating his former statement that he was one of the most accomplished villians in America. He then spoke about his encounter in the waiting room. After supper the reporter examined the register and ascertained that the man with the spectacles had written his name "John Norton, Savannah." A search was made for "Mr. Norton," but he could not be found. About this time Mr. John L. Martin, editor of the Tribune, entered the office, and to him the reporter spoke about the party from Savannah. Then the man was described to Mr. Martin who, was also told what Mr. Scantlin had said, Mr. Martin promptly replied:

"Why, it's Orth Stein, one of the greatest villains in the world. I used to work with him on the Kansas City Star. Where is he?"

Mr. Martin determined to see him in the morning before the bird would fly. He called at the Armstrong shortly before 7 o'clock and inquired for Mr. "Norton," but Clerk Broder stated that he had gone without eating his breakfast. Mr. Martin hurried around to the Western & Atlantic depot, where he saw the same gentleman pacing up and down the platform, and accosted him. After a little talk the man said he was Orth Stein. He spoke of his troubles, and said the half had not been written. Stein said that he came to Rome to meet a gentleman who did not show up. He started several times to speak of his career to Mr. Martin, who knew him well, but his voice cooked up whenever he began his story. He told Mr. Martin that he was going to Chattanooga, but he bought a ticket to Dalton from Mr. Wood. When the Chattanooga train was pulling out Mr. Martin told Stein his train was going out. He said it made no difference, he would go to Atlanta.

When he got on the train he said he would be back at night, but, strange to say, he never came. This story was published, and for a week the newspapers of Georgia have been filled with descriptions of mysterious arrivals. The bold robbery of the Savannah express train on Friday night drew the attention of the whole state to the mysterious stranger, and it was freely stated that he was the robber. That became so apparent from personal descriptions that J. B. Raymond and Orth Stein were the same individual, and articles to that effect were published yesterday. Last night, in Stone mountain, 16 miles from Atlanta, while Mr. Beauchamp, a stone-cutter, was reading the story in the local hotel, a lank, long stranger entered and asked for a room. Beauchamp at once jumped to the conclusion that this was the bird. He went out and found Marshal McCurdy, to whom he told his suspicions. The two men returned to the hotel, and found the stranger in bed. Contrary to their expectations of a spirited resistance, the stranger said:

"I am tired of this life. I would as soon be in hell as leading such a life. The end must come, and I will save you gentlemen the trouble of proving my identity. I am Orth Stein, but I am not guilty of half that has been alleged."

The two men guarded him in the hotel until this morning, when they took him to Decatur and put him in jail. He was very much depressed. This evening he concluded to tell his story to the public, which was as follows—

Story of His Life.

The story of Stein's life, as current in the newspapers and generally believed, is pretty tough. Stein was born in Lafayette, Ind., where his family were eminently respectable and cultured people. His father, long since dead, was a brilliant editor, a scholar and a poet of such rare abilities that he received the warmest admiration of the great Sargent S. Prentiss. When he was about 18 years old Stein became a reporter on the Lafayette Courier. From the beginning he showed his adaptability for the profession, and made a brilliant reputation on account of the dramatic vividness of his articles. Even then he showed signs of dissipation and exhibited a disposition for a roving life. He went to Leadville, Col., where he did remarkable newspaper work. Stein there went under the name of John Bell. His "fake" about the grave-yard robbery stirred up the whole community. He continued his wild career of dissipation, and soon won a reputation as a "heavy lusher" and poker player.

He became enamored with a disreputable woman who was the mistress of George Frederick, proprietor of a variety theater in Kansas City, Mo. One night Stein went to the woman's abode, but had been there but a short while when Frederick came in, and the men had a difficulty. The two men, still quarreling, left the room, Frederick going ahead. Stung at something which Frederick said, Stein pulled his pistol and shot Frederick in the back of the head, mortally wounding him. Frederick died within a few minutes after he was shot. Stein was tried for murder and was convicted and sentenced to 25 years in the penitentiary. He got a new trial and was cleared. The attorney who cleared him was Major Woffered, of Cartersville. After he got out of his trouble Stein went back to Lafayette, Ind. Shortly before Orth went to his old home his father died, leaving an insurance on his life of $5,000.

His mother had just received a check from the insurance company when Orth said he wanted to start a paper. He so imposed on his mother that she signed blank checks for her rascal y son. Stein then started a daily paper called the "Comet."

The Comet shot rapidly through the journalistic sky, made a brilliant glare, and then went out. Stein suddenly left Lafayette one night with his mistress, leaving his mother and sister absolutely penniless. He took his mistress to St. Louis, where he played a star engagement. The woman went in the best society as Stein's wife, and was quite a high flyer for a few months. While in St. Louis Steen swindled Mr. Hoxie, superintendent of the Gould southwestern system, out of $500. Steen wandered out to the far west once more, and after a varied experience of rascality he came east again. He worked in the New England states, leaving a criminal record behind him everywhere.

About the time when the Whitechapel murders were being committed he was in Baltimore. While in that city he did some of the best newspaper work on record. In the Baltimore Sun one morning appeared a wierd, intensely thrilling story of "Jack the Ripper." This was a theory in the Whitechapel murders. This article which was four columns long, put forth a theory that these crimes were committed by a physician, and the technical description of the murders led people to believe that the article must have been written by some eminent doctor, so precise and accurate was the knowledge exhibited on the ghastly subject. Among the people who adopted the cooked-up theory of Stein was the most eminent physician in the city. He sent for Stein and entertained him in the most extravagant manner. The physician was perfectly fascinated by the accomplished scoundrel. One night Stein drove in a hack to the physician's house and told him he was obliged to go to New York that night. He had a draft for $400 on the New York Sun, for which he was correspondent. It was late, and the banks, of course, were closed, and he could find none of his friends; would the doctor indorse the draft. The doctor said he was only too glad, and would get the money for him, too. The deluded old gentleman told him to dismiss his hack and took him in his own buggy, got him the money and took him to the depot.

The physician never saw anything more of Stein, but he saw the draft again. Stein continued his brilliant career of villainy in many place, and finally got to Louisville where he played a remarkably keen game on a Louisville paper, which denominated him "the gild-edge scoundrel of the nineteenth century." Stein wandered on into Texas, keeping on in his career of wickedness until he got to El Paso, where he killed another man in a mysterious manner, just how has never been clearly understood. The next report that came stated that he was in the Florida penitentiary for a neat bit of forgery, and he was thought to be in the "jug" when he suddenly turned up in Rome last night. People who know Stein well say that he is capable of any villainy, and think he was here on some dark errand.

After all, the world is small, and the wily scoundrel never had the remotest idea of seeing anybody here who would be acquainted with him and his grand career of villainy. The rewards now out for this man will aggregate $10,000.

ROBISON ST. RAILWAY EXTENSIONS.

The Robison electric street railway company continue to construct extensions of their lines and several more extensions are projected. The Hoag street end of the line to Junction avenue will soon be built and the loop is now being placed on the ground. The extension of the line in lower town along Mulberry street, Spring street and Stickney avenue will also be constructed immediately, and a number of new switches are being placed on Huron street. The right of way is now being obtained to double track the Belt line on Lawrence avenue from Bartlett street to Bancroft. The company is also preparing to build a new car house which will probably be done within the next 90 days.

BIGGEST OF THE SEASON.

Will Kelly, who is fishing at the East Sister island, with the Morrison fishing club, has broken the season's record for black bass. Tuesday morning he caught a black bass which weighed four pounds and 15 ounces, and the fish was not landed for an hour and a half after the strike, so Dave Hanner says. Kelley had quite a wrestle with his boss ship and demonstrated he is one of the greatest fishermen in Toledo. The bass was presented to the editor of the Bee, as an evidence of the truthfulness of the above statement.

WEDDED THIS MORNING.

This morning Herbert E. Richards and Miss Lena Klotz were united in marriage at the home of the bride on Nebraska avenue. They leave on their wedding tour to-day for Buffalo and the east. On their return they will reside in their handsome new residence on Robinwood avenue. The groom is in the employ of the Wolson Spice company, and among the numerous presents was a beautiful picture from the office force. The bride is a charming young lady formerly in the employ of the Blade Printing & Paper company. Mr. and Mrs. Richards have the best wishes of their numerous friends for their future happiness.

JUDICIARY COMMITTEE.

The council committee on judiciary committee met last evening and acted on a number of claims. Nearly all were for abatement of assessment and none were of particular importance. A sub committee reported adversely on the claim of Patrick Ford, of East Toledo, for $125 damages for the loss of a horse injured by defective planking on Oak street. The claim was rejected. A goodly number of abatement claims met the same fate. Messrs. Lee and Swain were appointed a committee to consider claims of Charles Sandberg, Lafayette street and Collingwood avenue, $587 41; E. P. Witey, Sumner street and Sugar avenue, $149 60; Patrick Moran, Maumee avenue, $536 97; Charles Germain, Indiana avenue and Lenk street, $492 28.

THE FOURTEENTH OHIO.

A Gallant Regiment That Fought and Bled

On the Bloody Fields of Battle in the South.

Interesting Reunion Being Held in McClure To-Day — The Boys Who Yet Live to Tell the Stories.

McClure, Sept. 17. — (Special.) — The little town of McClure, always busy and lively, is ten-fold more so to-day, owing to the fact that the survivors of the gallant Fourteenth Ohio infantry is holding its reunion here.

Although more than a quarter of a century has elapsed since the closing of that fatal and bloody rebellion, which resulted in the reformation of our government, the boys who marched forth in '61 from Toledo and vicinity, have not all passed away.

Quite a number of them yet live to commemorate the valor of their fallen comrades, and relate the achievements of the regiment, than which a braver one never marched into the field.

The Fourteenth regiment was raised in Toledo and in the counties adjacent to Lucas, in 1861, and was recruited between August 14 and September 5 of that year. Gen. James B. Steadman was its first colonel and when he was promoted to brigadier general, George B. Este succeeded to the command of the regiment. Paul Edwards, H. D. Kingsbury and Alfred Moon were lieutenant colonels, and John W. Wilson, major. The regiment saw some of the hardest service of the war. It participated in battles at Wild Cat, Ky., Mill Springs, Shiloh, Corinth, Hoovers Gap, Chickamauga, Mission Ridge, Ringgold, Dalton, Resaca, Kenesaw, Utoy Creek, Jonesboro and Goldsboro.

At the expiration of the three years for which the regiment first enlisted, the original members, except the veterans, were mustered out, and the organization composed of veterans and recruits retained till July 11, 1865, when it was mustered out in accordance with orders from the war department.

The good people, of McClure, extended a most hospitable welcome to the veterans of the gallant old Fourteenth.

The national flag was floated to the breeze from all the principal buildings and decorations were plentiful.

Nearly one hundred survivors of the regiment were present.

The regiment convened at 11 o'clock, and transacted the business before it. The following officers were elected to serve for the ensuing year:

President—G. J. Hanford, Waterville.
Vice President—O. N. Gunn, Maumee.
Treasurer—J. B. Newton, Bowling Green.
Secretary—Leroy E. Clark, Toledo.
Assistant secretary—H. Hathaway, Toledo.
Committee on Memorial—J. A. Chase, H. G. Neubert, Jonathan Miller, John P. Bronson, Leroy E. Clark.

Waterville was chosen as the place and September 1, 1892, as the time for the next reunion.

After partaking of a bounteous dinner, the regiment was addressed by Dr. Newton, Col. H. G. Neubert, J. A. Chase, J. J. Clark and others of the survivors.

Wheat Quotations for the Day—Price Current for Produce and Other Articles.

The market quotations in the Bee are compiled from United Press special dispatches and from reports received by the Toledo Produce Exchange, and specially arranged by Mr. Denison B. Smith, secretary of the Exchange.

OFFICE OF THE TOLEDO BEE, TOLEDO, O., Sept. 17.

London wheat markets quiet; corn weak. Liverpool wheat firm; corn quiet, shade lower.

The receipts of wheat at seven principal western points to-day are 950,730 bu, compared with 399,362 bu on the same day last year.

California wheat movement.—The receipts at San Francisco in the week ending September 8th, equaled 535,480 bu of wheat and 32,407 bbls of flour. The exports equaled 680,530 bu of wheat and 27,854 bbls of flour.

Gold has commenced its return home. One and one quarter millions have been raised in New York, and a portion of it in the same packages in which it was exported.

The Russian government has provided $15,000,000 for the relief of the distress among the poor classes, owing to the failure of the grain, crops and other reasons, and to purchase and distribute seed for winter sowing. Official reports show that the harvests have utterly failed in 18 Russian provinces, and partially in eight others.

Government report of exports.—We print herein the United States treasury department table of exports of breadstuffs for August and for two months in 1891 and 1890.

The exports of wheat and flour expressed in wheat in August equaled 25,279,027 bu.

The exports for two months, flour and wheat, equals 38,488,619 bu, compared with 16,786,444 bu in the corresponding months in 1890.

Of the exports in two months, there was shipped from our Pacific ports in wheat and flour expressed in wheat equal to 6,152,181 bu, and leaving as the movement from our Atlantic ports 32,336,438 bu.

The receipts of wheat to-day at seven principal Western points are 551,428 bushels in excess of the corresponding Thursday in 1890.

The export clearances yesterday from four Atlantic ports were 408,691 bu of wheat. The flour movement was enormous and equaled 450,000 bu of wheat. Aggregate 858,000 bu.

English markets as reported herein are firmer and a shade higher.

Our Exports of Wheat.

In ten weeks we have exported in wheat and flour expressed in wheat 22 per cent. of 200,000,000, bu. That is a favorite aggregate with grain men now, but we believe prices must be improved from present basis to produce such a result. We have exported 185,000,000 on a smaller crop, but at higher prices, and on a much smaller population than the present.

Receipts of both winter and spring wheat are decreasing, and to-day show a much less aggregate than for the past week.

To be consistent, the wheat markets had to be inconsistant to-day, and as everybody expected the markets to be lower, prices went up. All right, but it suggests somebody's gentle touch and management, all the same, all the way from Liverpool to Chicago.

These daily flirtations of the market, now with the bears, and to-morrow with the bulls, savors strongly of monkeyism, but if it is true, it must be that a powerful organization is managing the business. If there is the management that is claimed, it will not take long to wear out the patience of dealers.

English markets are reported closing very firm.

The markets for wheat on this side have exhibited great firmness all day, and with some irregularity as usual prices have advanced. The December deal at Chicago has been 2¼c higher.

Corn in New York and Chicago is sharply cheaper. The weather presents conditions that leave nothing to be desired and the receipts are simply marvelous, considering it is on the end of a short crop.

In New York September wheat closed at 1⅜c and December 1⅝c higher. September corn closed 2½c and October 1¼c lower.

In Toledo business in wheat futures has been more active and again there is more confidence in the deal. Prices are improved. On the basis of December the closing price is 1½c higher. On the call December wheat sold at $1 02½ to $1 00¼. After the call December sold at $1 01⅛; and closed at $1 01½; May sold at $1 07½ to 1 08¾ and closed at $1 08, a gain of 1½c; September at close was quotable at 97½c and October at 98c.

Cash wheat was in fair demand, offerings light. No. 2, soft red, at 96 to 97½c, a gain of 1½c. No. 3, soft, at 93 to 93¼c. Rejected No. 1, 85c. No. 2, white, at 93¼. No. 4, soft, at 86c. Corn, No. 3, at 60 to 58. Rye firmer and 1c dearer. No 2 at 92c; October at 91½c; No 3 at 88c.

Clover seed was cheaper and less active than yesterday. Prime for cash at $4 60 to $4 55; October, $4 47½ to $4 45; December at $4 55 to $4 50; No 2 at $4 20.

The Grashdanin, St. Petersburg exponent for the "upper classes," does not want a Franco-Russian alliance, and insists that Russia's strength lies in her barbarism. There is no doubt about that. Russia's barbarism is more than strong. It is rank.

He is the same Foraker of old, as ugly and mean in politics as it is possible for man to be. He ranted a couple of hours at Athens yesterday and pleased the republicans, of course. He is not in this campaign especially to help McKinley, but is driving many stakes for himself for United States Senator.

Col. Conger "explains." It is not a "cut-down" of wages in his manufactories. It is simply a "readjustment." "The reduction is light," says the colonel airily, "the average is less than 10 per cent." A mere trifle, of course, except to the men "readjusted," and under that name of course they will accept it joyously and continue to hurrah for protection.

The platform-makers for the New York democrats used clean-cut, straightout English. Here are some of the things the platform denounces:

"The McKinley worse-than-war tariff; the Blaine reciprocity humbug; the squandered surplus; the advancing deficit; the defective census; the falsified representation and the revolutionary proceedings of the billion-dollar congress."

This is calling a spade a spade, and is a manner of speaking acceptable to the people.

President Harrison has now the duty of appointing nine judges for the new United States Circuit court, one judge of the court of claims, two Interstate Commerce commissioners, one member of the cabinet and perhaps two. What a pity he is such an avowed civil service reformer. Of course he will not fill these high stations with a view to nurturing the second term boomlet, any more than he would remove an honest republican collector to give the office to a J. Sloat Fassett.

The revolt of the farmers as individuals and as members of the alliance against the false doctrines to which their organizations were committed at Ocala and Omaha is a healthy sign that the alliances will be rescued from leaders who are intemperate if not disloyal. The economic principles upon which the alliances were formed, and the great good the organizations can do their members, should enable this conservative element to gain control of affairs next November. The life of their movement depends upon it.

Never in the history of Lucas county politics were the democrats so earnest in the preliminary work of the campaign as at present. The club organizations are having a splendid effect. The interest manifested in the coming county convention will certainly produce good results. An excellent ticket is certain to be nominated and that means the election of several, if not all, the candidates. There is a great democratic opportunity this year in Lucas county and the party must take advantage of the situation.

The "silk-stocking republicans" of Massachusetts did not succeed in nominating their candidate for governor yesterday. Hon. W. W. Crapo will now take a back seat, alongside of Pres. Andrew D. White of Cornell. The republican method in naming gubernatorial candidates in the eastern states this year seems to be to select men who will stick at nothing, and to eschew men with clean records.

After the bold Briton has exulted for more than three centuries over the defeat of the Spanish armada because superior British naval tactics and British valor were supposed to have accomplished it, comes James Anthony Froude to say that the armada was defeated because the Spanish admiral was seasick, and his men had been fed on damaged beef and mouldy sea biscuit. History is largely made up of accepted traditions, and its verdicts are often set aside in the light of later knowledge. Any revision of history offered by Mr. Froude may, however, remain unaccepted until otherwise confirmed. Accuracy it not Mr. Froude's strong point as a historian.

And so Manufacturer Conger, national republican committeeman, ex-republican congressman, chairman of the Ohio state republican committee, has cut down wages 33 1-2 per cent! This is the most unkindest cut of all for his bosom friend, Major McKinley. Considering how near election is the wage might have been kept up until after November. Or do the republican party leaders continue to believe that the wage-earners they have fooled with their false theory will continue to hurrah for protection under even these circumstances?

It sometimes happens that the first news of any disaster is exaggerated, but in the reports of the flood in Spain the contrary is the case. The latest advices indicate that the loss of life and property is very great. This has been a year of many sorrowful experiences in European countries, of famines, dearth of crops, pestilences, droughts and floods. And still over these peoples hang the black clouds of internal and international dissensions, from which at any moment may descend the first lightning stroke which shall kindle the flames of a war whose extent and consequences cannot be foretold.

The distinguished ex-admiral of the canal navy is evidently much worried over the exposure of his cruel treatment of and double-dealing with Hon. Jacob Romeis. The gentleman who once denied his nationality will not hesitate now to deny anything, and he vigorously asserts that he never promised Mr. Romeis that he would vote against Sherman. Mr. Flickinger will discover that he can't ride two horses in the Lucas county circus, neither can he trifle with so distinguished a citizen as Mr. Romeis. Andy has made a bad break and nothing he can now do will help him out. He might as well withdraw from the ticket. His name is Dennis instead of Karl.

Icelanders are dissatisfied with the measure of home government conferred upon them by the mother country, Denmark, and numbers of the more enterprising have emigrated to Manitoba. It is predicted that there will be a still greater immigration to Alaska from Iceland in the near future. The bone of contention is the codfish, which certainly has bones enough to serve the purpose Until 1883 the Icelanders furnished codfish for the Spanish market. The refusal of the Danish parliament to renew a treaty in that year shut off the island from this market, and now its fishing population hovers year after year on the verge of starvation. There is nothing like restricting markets to awaken the discontent of a people.

The democratic campaign opens at Sidney to-day. A great crowd is in attendance and democracy is preached into the people in all its purity. But why call this an opening day? In truth the democratic campaign in this and every state began the day the McKinley monstrosity became a law. The people were aroused by that flagrant act of the republican party, and the campaign of protest will not cease until the law shall be repealed and the republican party permanently sent into retiracy. The meeting at Sidney is indicative of the mighty feeling in Ohio against McKinley and McKinleyism. From now the campaign will be hot enough for the most lively politician. The slogan is Campbell and Victory, and victory and Campbell it surely will be in November.

Treasurer Seeberger has issued notice to the subscribers to Chicago world's fair stock that "the collector has called for the last time," and they must pay within ten days or be sued. There were geographical reasons why it seemed the great fair should have been held upon the seaboard, but once Chicago secured it there was no question that the energy of that phenominal city would carry through whatever was undertaken. This manner of going after the funds subscribed by the citizens is illustrative. Congress will probably be memorialized for an appropriation soon after it convenes, and there is business in having that local fund collected before then. The failure to do so would be a club in the hands of those who will oppose the appropriation. And it will be collected. Chicago is not New York, and what it undertakes to do, it does. It does not bequeath the finishing of the job to posterity.

NEW ENGLAND'S REVOLT.

Henry Cabot Lodge presided over the republican state convention in Massachusetts yesterday, and in his opening speech he said:

A vote for Gov. Russell means free trade, not amendments to the tariff of 1890; not free raw materials for the benefit of New England, but naked free trade.

This untruth is not a surprising utterance from the author of the force bill. The man who could father and defend that un-American and infamous measure can be counted on to do anything or say anything for party ends. But is it not significant of the dissatisfaction in the Bay state over "the the tariff of 1890," that people have to be warned its amendment is not the purpose of the democratic party? Does it not imply that "free raw materials for the benefit of England" is tempting voters to the democratic ranks?

In these few words from Mr. Lodge is an acknowledgment that the McKinley tariff is so disastrous and unpopular in its workings that the people can only be held back from voting its overthrow by frightening them into the belief that the success of the democracy will carry the country to the other extreme.

It may well be believed that the republicans in 1889 did not know how immediate and far-reaching would be the injury to business and trade from the enactment of this iniquitous tax, nor how generally the intelligence of the people would trace these results directly back to the party responsible for the tariff legislation. They may well be alarmed now over the conditions they have created but cannot control.

Next to Pennsylvania, New England has been the stronghold of protection. No section of the country more generally entertained the belief that the more they were protected the more prosperous they were. To them the enactment of the tariff of 1890 was satisfactory. Now they discover that the enforcement of that tariff in 1891 is increasing the cost of their raw materials, shutting down their mills, reducing their wages, curtailing their profits, narrowing their markets, and the longer it is operative the more they suffer from it. It does not take a people like ours, suffering under such conditions, long to find and condemn the causes. In one year the New England that was willing to lay all the rest of the country under tribute, to foster its own special industries, has been brought to realize that the special privileges sought and secured is working its own destruction.

New England, as Mr. Lodge acknowledges, is ready to amend the tariff of 1890. New England, as Mr. Lodge acknowledges, cannot manufacture without free raw materials. New England, which has been dominated by that narrow statesmanship that teaches a section of the country can be benefitted at the expense of the rest, has learned a bitter lesson in a brief time, and is ready to revolt from false leaders, break away from false traditions, and come upon the higher grounds where the democracy of the country has always stood, proclaiming that class legislation was not only injurious to a part of the people, but fatal upon all in its ultimate effects.

If the beforetime leaders of New England can show the people no better reasons for again trusting them than Mr. Lodge offers, their hold upon them is lost. Even the "bogey man" of "naked free trade" is not going to frighten them away from supporting the party which warned them against indorsing the tariff monstrosity that has brought them to present conditions; the party that would have prevented these conditions and is still pledged to remove them.

PLAIN TALK.

Private persons have offered to contribute the money needed to continue the expert investigation into the affairs of the Keystone bank. The treasury's excuse is thus overcome, and if the administration persists in refusing to permit the discovery of the wrong-doing it will be generally believed that John Wanamaker needs protection and that the president accords it to him.—New York World.

WILL NOT DOWN.

Like Banquo's ghost, the tariff will not down. In a few days Gov. Campbell and a lot of good democratic orators will be telling their hearers of the infamy of the McKinley bill, puncturing the tin plate liar, and making the republican fur fly in every direction. The democrats are in it to win and our gallant governor will lead the charge in the struggle that will place Ohio in the democratic column.—Delphos Herald.

Sugar is supposed to have been made free, but the bounty the American people are likely to pay during the present year for encouraging its production will amount to between twelve and fifteen million dollars. If they are not taxed in one way they will be in another.—N. Y. Daily News.

WILL AROUSE SYMPATHY.

Foraker will enter the Ohio campaign to-night. For the next two months the spectacle of the unhappy John Sherman forced to keep one eye on Foraker and the other on Foster will arouse the brotherly sympathy of every cross-eyed man.—Chicago Times.

IN THE BRUSH.

SHE IS NOT DISS DEBAR.

Vera Ava to Make Chicago Howl Next Week.

She Says She Is Going to Tell Who Put Cronin's Body in the Sewer.

Cincinnati, Sept. 17.—Miss Vera Ava is not the famous Diss DeBar. This was proved to-day. Her real name is still unknown. Next Sunday she starts for Chicago to speak to the people from the stage of a museum, and make public the names of the 27 men who were in the Cronin conspiracy. She claims to have the list of the men who plotted the murder.

"Chicago will be on fire next week," said she last evening. "My proof is convincing and after what has happened no one will be spared. I will be blown to pieces but I will speak the truth, and no one can refute it, when I show 27 documents which I seized from a foolish housemaid who had been entrusted with them by a frightened suspect.

"O'Sullivan, the ice man, is innocent," she continued. "The underlings suffered and the ringleaders escaped, but they will not escape now. It was known that I had this terrible evidence. I was drugged, boxed up and shipped away to die on a train. I did not die, and as if by a miracle I recovered and escaped to the streets almost naked; then was suddenly identified at long range as Mme. Diss DeBar, and an attempt was made to smuggle me away to Long View asylum, but Judge Ferris knew I was not crazy."

DIAZ TO HIS PEOPLE.

Speech at the Opening of the Congress.

Mexico's Progress Placed Before the World.

Reciprocity With the United States Discussed—Rapid Strides Made by the Republic.

City of Mexico, Sept. 17.—President Diaz opened congress last night. In his speech he said: "Our foreign relations are excellent. I have named a commissioner to the monetary convention at Washington, also a commission to arrange a treaty of reciprocity with the United States. The convention with Guatemala for arranging the frontier limits has been extended two years.

"The mixed claims commission of Guatemala and Mexico expired without finishing its work. Mexico is trying to obtain an extension of the time of the commission. Treaties of peace, friendship, commerce, and navigation have been signed with Santo Domingo and Italy.

The Mexican government refused coal to the Chilian vessel Esmeralda, but afterward consented to supply a small quantity which was absolutely necessary for the sailing of the ship.

"The Chilian junta asks for recognition, but we have demanded time for investigation, as we wish to be neutral. Diplomatic relations have been commenced with Japan, the Argentine Republic, and Russia. Mexico sent a commissioner to the geographical congress recently held in Switzerland.

"A new ministry, that of communications and public works, has been established. A new sanitary code has been promulgated. The penal code has been refomed. The school system has been improved. Mining is progressing. Public land is being rapidly taken up. Agriculture is flourishing. Mexico has accepted the invitation of the United States to attend the Chicago exposition, and I expect that congress will grant the amount of money necessary, that we may make a showing worthy of the place we occupy among civilized nations.

"Our postal relations with foreign countries are good. In the interior we are extending postal facilities and routes. The postal receipts last year amounted to $1,097,434. Seven new steamship lines have contracted to carry the mails without a subsidy. The government telegraph lines are being extended the same as railroads.

"The Monetery & Gulf railroad is finished to Tampico. The Inter-Oceanic is finished to Vera Cruz. The Tehuantepec railroad contractors have been ordered by the government to finish the work. All other lines are progressing and there are now 10,100 kilometers in operation. New highways are being built.

"The works at the ports of Vera Cruz and Tampico are progressing. The Tehuantepec route will soon be open from the Pacific to the Atlantic. The works for the drainage of the valley are progressing. Our lighthouses are being improved. New customs tariffs have been published with a liberal refom to increase commerce.

"I am sure that our receipts will more than cover expenditures, and that, as heretofore, money will be placed in Europe to pay interest in advance. Banks are operating regularly and increasing their business daily, and no fears of a crisis are entertained, because I shall take care that their circulation remains within the specified limits. Our credit abroad holds a distinguished place, subject to slight natural fluctuations. The Indian troubles in Sonora have ended. The army is being mobilized scientifically.'

In conclusion the President said: "You see the country progressing and developing its natural elements without the precipitation of convulsions of any kind, and consequently without the risk of crises or panics; and we show the world a country satisfied with its institutions, dedicated to the peaceful development of its natural resources, and tending to the consolidation of her credit by prudent business reserve and respect for obligations."

WILL COME TO TOLEDO.

Lima, O., Sept. 17.—A young man named Hallie Ballard, and aged 22 years, was arrested and had a hearing before the probate judge in regard to his sanity.

He imagines that he has the power to raise the dead, move mammoth houses and prodigious stones by simply giving the word of command. He is considered a dangerous lunatic and will be taken to the Toledo asylum.

WILL MEET HERE NEXT YEAR.

Plain City, O., Sept. 17.—The Fifty-fourth regiment, O. V. I., held its annual reunion here yesterday with a very satisfactory attendance. It was a day devoted to comr deship and a general good time. Henry Weizel was chosen president and it was decided that the regimental reunion of 1892 will be held in Toledo.

STRICKEN WITH PARALYSIS.

Shelby, O., Sept. 17.—County Infirmary Director Edwin Payne was stricken with paralysis yesterday. This makes the fourth time he has been stricken down within the past three months. He cannot recover.

WATER ON ALL SIDES,

Late News from Spain's Terrible Floods.

Whole Sections of Country Under Water and Much Life and Property Destroyed.

Madrid, Sept. 17.—Further distressing particulars in regard to the flooded provinces continue to be received at long intervals, each additional report showing that the extent of the disaster has been in no way exaggerated.

The latest information is from Jaen, capital of the province of the same name. The governor of that province telegraphs that the whole commune of Aubeda is submerged; that the damage done is enormous, and that there has been considerable loss of life.

The correspondents of the Spanish and foreign newspapers who have been able to reach Consuegra describe it as "a city of the dead." On every side are terrible signs of destruction.

The rumbling of the death cart grates horribly upon the ear as those ghastly vehicles convey their sickening loads to the common trenches dug for their reception.

The streets everywhere are torn up, washed out and filled with all kinds of wreckage. Human remains, stray limbs, headless trunks are seen protruding from heaps of mud-covered wreckage.

The depth of the flood at Consuega can be gauged from the fact that the water rose 18 feet in the church of St. John the Baptist.

An estimate of the damage done to the property in and about Consuega places the loss at $2,500,000. The survivors of the disaster give vague and confused ideas of the onward sweep of the waters which wrought such deadly havoc. They say, however, that, though the river was noticed to be rising rapidly, no serious apprehension was felt until the waters seemed like a sudden to rush forward, threatening to overwhelm and eventually overwhelming everything. Then came a wild race for life. Many climbed upon the roofs of the houses, hoping to escape, but the buildings gave way beneath them as the swollen waters swept through the town, consigning hundreds to death in the wreckage-laden stream.

The majority of the dead have been buried, as a sanitary precaution.

Twenty-seven dead bodies have been found in one dwelling house.

DEMOCRATS IN LINE.

The Primaries To-Morrow—Meetings Last Evening.

There seems to be some misunderstanding regarding the appointment of supervisors for the primaries that are to be held to-morrow evening. It is the duty of the central committeeman, in the absence of any action by a ward club, to appoint two supervisors and a clerk, to secure a place to vote, and get out printed tickets of the delegates to be voted for.

In order to give every voter a chance to vote, central or ward committeemen should forward to the BEE for publication not later than to-morrow forenoon the names of supervisors and places of voting. It behooves every ward to send a full and strong delegation. It is of utmost importance that good men be sent to the county convention. Remember it is necessary to vote for a central committeeman at the primaries.

First Warders Meet.

The democrats of the First ward met last night at the corner of Huron and Magnolia streets, and perfected the organization of the First ward club. A committee to draft a constitution and by laws was appointed consisting of Homer Hood, P. H. Dowling and Curtis Johnson. It was instructed to report at the next meeting.

Besides voting on the list of names suggested at the last meeting of the club, the following democrats were elected members:

J Parvs, M C Van Plette, N Gough, A Mosher, F J Stager, F W Ayling, W W Betts, P A Brennon, F Eisfeller, J J Dusseau, A L Hass, J J Harbauer, G M Lann, J Schindler, H Vilhauer, J Oberle, F E Wright, J G Meyer, R Oberle and A H Schoen.

A list of delegates was prepared, and it will be voted on at the primary Friday evening. The primary will be held in Meister's storeroom on Magnolia street, between the hours of 7 and 9 o'clock.

R. Mathias and E. D. Scrafford were selected as judges for the primary and Henry Ernsthausen clerk.

A special committee consisting of five will be appointed by the president at the next meeting of the club, to solicit funds for the construction of a wigwam.

Dr. Whiteford Recommended.

TO THE EDITOR: We ask a favorable consideration, by the democratic convention, of Dr. Whiteford's candidacy for coroner. He has been a resident of the city for 12 years, has always been a democrat, and has done considerable work for the party. The doctor is a qualified physician and a gentleman. He has not been a candidate before. If nominated we believe he will be elected and prove an efficient officer and a credit to the party.

FIFTH WARD DEMOCRATS.

Ward News and Notes.

The Third ward will be in line Friday night after the primary for the purpose of organizing a club.

By-laws for the Seventh ward democratic club will be considered at the regular meeting to-night.

The Seventh ward club meets to-night and will make the necessary arrangements for the primaries to-morrow night.

The democrats of the upper part of the Sixth ward meet to-night for the purpose of forming a club. Every democrat should be on hand.

A Fourth ward democrat writes the BEE relative to the apparent inactivity of the committeemen in that ward. The Fourth should get on a hustle.

The democrats of the Fourth ward will meet at the police station this evening at 7 p. m. to form a permanent organization. Joe Stehman, ward committeeman.

Ward Committeeman Jim Maguire, of the Ninth, has called a meeting for the purpose of organizing a club to-morrow evening. The meeting will be held at Lincoln hall after the primary.

Ward Committeeman Frank Bolan has called a meeting of the democrats of the Eighth ward for this evening to form a club. The meeting will be held in the rear of the engine house and a full attendance is requested.

Mr. Robert E. Booth, in answer to appeals and requests made by friends, has announced himself as a candidate for election to the legislature on the democratic ticket. Mr. Booth is one of Toledo's best known printers, and a delegate from the Typographical union to the Central Labor union. He has served as president of the latter body and was re-elected at the recent choice of officials. He is a representative workingman and should he receive the nomination would undoubtedly make a strong candidate.

THAT SUGAR PLANT,

The Projectors in Earnest and Mean Business.

An Industry That Will Thrive in This Locality—A Successful Experiment in Raising the Beets.

The parties who are desirous of instituting a plant in Toledo for the manufacture of sugar from the sugar beet are evidently in earnest and mean business.

Mr. A. K. Detwiler, who has been in communication with the parties, received the following letter last evening in regard to the matter:

GENTLEMEN: Replying to yours of the 12th inst. beg to state that a plant with capacity of 150 tons beets per 24 hours, would cost or necessitate a capital of $200,000 on which could easily be earned at least 30 per cent, plus money saved by having gas for fuel. The season generally lasts about 80 to 90 days, requiring about 12,000 tons beets; second sugars are generally stored and worked over after the rush, thus giving employment to about 100 men during the busy season and five or ten during the quiet months. To have a plant in operation for the fall of '92, work on the machinery would have to be commenced very soon, so as to be able to ship it west next spring as soon as navigation opened. Should you be able to enlist sufficient interest among the farmers and capitalists in your city to carry the thing through, think that might be well for you to appoint a committee to come East and further study details. Considering the possible interest or should say returns on a plant of the size mentioned the company could be easily capitalized at $200,000, with a view of enlarging later on. When in Europe I secured control for the United States of patents and methods of manufacturing, as yet unknown in this country, enabling a plant to produce directly without second refining a palatable sweet and white granulated sugar. A plant cutting 150 of tons beets per 24 hours is the size which abroad has proved the most remunerative. The parent company now being incorporated will do one of two things, either act as agents for local companies, making all purchases of machinery abroad, obtaining best labor and seed, superintending construction of building and machinery, or, in other words, everything necessary to warrant the venture proving a success as far as lies in its power, or else we will furnish everything in the line of machinery, labor and seed, taking a controlling interest in the local companies as payment therefor. When acting as agents as above mentioned would take in payment a portion of stock in the local companies. We trust that the information here furnished will enable you to bring together the necessary parties and bring about a meeting between us."

Mr. Detwiler also received a communication from C. S. Seitz, of Tiffin, stating that he had raised some sugar beets this summer as an experiment, and the result is highly satisfactory, and that he had sent a sample to Washington to be analyzed.

This is an industry that will thrive in this locality, and should receive every encouragement possible at the hands of citizens.

IN A GOOD PLACE NOW.

Tiffin, O., Sept. 17.—(Special)—Notice has been given of an attempt to secure the pardon of Charles A. Madden, now serving a term in the penitentiary for the murder of his affianced bride, Miss Phoebe Bernard, when he was a college student here November 3, 1881.

The murdered girl's father is circulating a remonstrance against the proposed action and the paper is being liberally signed.

The murderer is now in the insane ward of the prison and it is proposed to have him pardoned and transferred to the insane asylum.

THE FARMERS IN CONGRESS

Claims Made by Alliance Leaders in Washington.

A New Bill on the Basis of of the Rejected Sub-Treasury Measure Will be Introduced.

Washington, Sept. 17.—At the Farmers' alliance headquarters in this city it is stated that the alliance will have 55 men in the next house who will vote with it on all measures that it may see fit to bring forward. In the senate the party claims four senators—Peffer, Kyle, Irby and Vance.

At the next session the sub-treasury bill as it was introduced in the last congress will not make its appearance. That measure has been repudiated by both houses of congress, and will, for that reason, not be resurrected.

A bill constructed, however, upon lines similar to it, and embodying the same principles, will be introduced into both houses and pushed to a vote.

The Stanford land loan bill will not be touched by the alliance, but a bill bearing upon the same subject will be introduced. Another measure which the alliance will demand is a free coinage bill.

These three measures are the ones in which the party take the most interest but other measures will be introduced and efforts to pass them will be made.

FORCED TO FORECLOSE.

The James Vick Seed Company in Trouble.

Liabilities Will Amount to Nearly, If Not Quite, Two Hundred Thousand Dollars.

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 17.—The Flour City bank this morning levied on the property of the James Vick (seedsman) corporation on a chattel mortgage for $85,000 held as collateral security. An application for a receiver will be made this afternoon, and the corporation will be dissolved. The liabilities will amount to between $175,000 to $200,000 and the assets, if advantageous sale of the valuable real estate owned by the firm is made, will be more than sufficient to cover liabilities.

James Vick will continue the business on a smaller scale under his own name. The concern has been in embarrassed circumstances for years, but has managed to tide over emergencies until the present crisis.

IN THE HANDS OF A MOB.

Youthful Lovers Who Carried Guns.

Dawsonville, Ga., Witnesses a Scene of Great Excitement—Trouble Not Yet Over.

Gainesville, Ga., Sept. 17.—Dawsonville was in the hands of a mob Tuesday. Men who had sued unsuccessfully for ladies' favors were the principals. Five young men, Dale and John Castleberry, Will Mahan, Asa Slaton and Herbert Omen, had been paying attentions to certain young women who did not reciprocate the tender feeling, while the attentions of Messrs. Tet Ware, a son of the minister, and John Martin were acceptable.

Tuesday night the five young men attacked Ware and Martin and commenced to fire pistols. They lay flat on the ground and returned the fire. Fifteen shots were exchanged.

In the midst of the firing the Rev. Mr. Ware appeared with a shot gun and turned both barrels loose in the direction of the hiding parties.

The five assailants walked to the public square, pistols in hand, where they openly defied the marshal and citizens. A street fight took place and finally the citizens retired, leaving the boys in possession.

Warrants have been sworn out for the entire gang, charging them with conspiracy and assault to murder. Mahan has been arrested but the other four are at large.

NEW THING IN FAIRS.

North Baltimore's Great Street Exposition

Opened Yesterday With a Grand Industrial Parade—Big Crowds in Attendance.

North Baltimore, Sept. 17.—(Special)—The first street fair ever held in this section of the county opened here yesterday and will be a great success. The fine weather and splendid exhibits, the strange nature of the fair, and the unusual amount of interest manifested by citizens, conspire to make it a go. The parade yesterday afternoon was a very creditable affair. The town council and city officials headed it, followed by the fire company, hose carts drawn by boys, and an industrial exhibition, gotten up by the manufacturers of North Baltimore. Several unique things appeared in the parade, and among them must be mentioned a wagon load of live deer. The proverbial coon on a pole was also there.

To-day the crowd is enormous. The booths which were erected on the streets, are filled with articles on exhibition, including all kinds of farm production, domestic, art and manufactures. The glass factories, the pressed brick works, and in fact every industry in the town has something on exhibition, and there is no question but that the first street fair held in North Baltimore will be an unqualified success and a big advertisement for North Baltimore and Wood county.

GREW OUT OF POLITICS.

Tragedy on the Streets of Sulphur Springs, Tex.

Two Editors Meet, Discuss Past Troubles, and Shoot Each Other Full of Holes.

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 17.—A tragedy was enacted on the public square at Sulphur Springs yesterday.

For several months Everett Moore, editor of the Alliance Vindicator, and E. M. Tate, editor of the Hopkins County Echo, have been engaged in a bitter newspaper controversy which had its origin in a dispute over the sub-treasury scheme.

Yesterday the men met on the square and the old trouble came up. Words led to blows, when the men grappled. They broke away, but pulled pistols and each fired.

Moore fell mortally wounded and expired a few hours afterwards. Tate was placed under arrest. The feeling runs high as both men were popular and each had many friends. Tate was badly wounded.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

THE ASIATIC SQUADRON,

The Present Move in the Chinese Waters.

Why the Small Boats Were Sent Across the Deep—Shallow Channels Abroad.

Washington, Sept. 17.—Secretary Tracy makes a lengthy statement respecting the policy of the government in sending small ships to Chinese waters instead of assigning our new ships to that station.

The Asiatic station has assigned to it every small ship in the navy except two. The secretary's reason for this is in the first place that our large ships of 3,000 tons or over are not as available for the protection of the American missions and our other interests in China as smaller vessels of lighter draft.

For the purpose of ascending the rivers, upon which our missions are located, small gunboats drawing from ten to twelve feet of water are the most available vessels; we have two of these of about 1,000 tons each, designed for this service, well on their way towards completion.

If, however, American missions and American citizens in China are to rely upon gunboats for their protection rather than upon the Chinese government, our fleet in these waters must be very largely increased. In the second place, we have been unable to send out new ships to the Asiatic waters on account of the difficulties which have attended their proper equipment up to the present time.

Experience has shown that it would be unwise to take a ship from the hands of the contractor and at once send her to permanent duty at a distant station.

As was to have been expected many defects have developed in our new constructions since they have been placed in commission. It must be realized that in the production of war material, including ordnance, equipment, electric lighting, gun protection, etc., since much of it is of an entirely novel character in this country, that errors of judgment and of design may occur, and it is therefore necessary that these devices shall receive the test of a certain amount of experience before sending them so far from home where alterations, substitutions or repairs may become a matter of great expense, and perhaps on certain stations of impracticability.

To equip a modern ship with modern guns and modern appliances, in a manner that they can be safely relied upon under all circumstances, cannot be accomplished without many tests and experiments.

"We are completing our new ships as rapidly as possible," said the secretary, "but until they are fully completed and equipped and tested by actual experience near home workshops it would be mere foolhardiness to send them to China. Our naval force to-day in the Pacific is more than twice as effective as a military force as it has been any previous time in the history of our navy."

PEARY IS ALL RIGHT.

An Interesting Letter from the Lieutenant's Wife.

They are Not Suffering for Food, Have Plenty of Fuel and Will be Back in 1892.

Richmond, Va. Sept. 17.—Mrs. Diebrich, mother of Mrs. Lieut. Peary, who is now in the Arctic regions, received a letter from her daughter yesterday stating that the exploring party is not in distress as had been reported.

She states that the party has a comfortable house, 60 tons of coal, 20 oil stoves, and five boats are in first-class condition. She says Lieut. Peary is well, has entirely recovered from the injury to his leg, is not asking for aid, and expects to return in November, 1892.

HAVE PLENTY TO EAT.

San Diego, Cal., Sept. 17.—The English steamer Hounslow came into port yesterday from Chili. She took 4,000 tons of flour and wheat down for Grace & Co., but found the market glutted. Wheat and flour were cheaper there than in San Francisco. She left Iquique about midnight and was fired on by the Ram Huascas, which was on the lookout for congressional ships. The Huascas then discovered her mistake and the Hounslow proceeded unmolested.

IN LABOR CIRCLES.

At Walbridge hall last evening the members of Joan of Arc assembly and of the Working Girls' union had the pleasure of entertaining Miss Belgarnie of England, who gave them a pleasant and instructive talk about the work and wages and general condition of the working girls of London, especially in the East end, where the poorest laborers of both sexes are found. From the members of the two organizations Miss Belgarnie also gathered statistics as to the women's work and wages in Toledo, and the legislation labor has been able to secure in Ohio.

The Machinists held an interesting meeting last evening and elected quite a number of new members. Arrangements are being made for a dance and it was decided to employ an expert draughtsman to give those members desiring it lessons once a week. A letter of thanks for courtesies extended on Labor day was read from the brethren of Detroit.

The Carpenters Union held a brief business meeting last evening and discussed matters pertaining to Labor day.

Miss Krauss of the Working Girls Union has started in business as a caterer at 2054 Vermont avenue. If competency deserves to succeed then Miss Krauss' venture will be a success.

A reception was tendered the happy couple at the residence of the groom's parents, from 9 to 12 o'clock, which was attended by the elite of our city. Here's More Divorce Suits.

As the time draws nigh for the regular term of the common pleas court, the new divorce suits are filed thick and fast. The following three were filed yesterday:

Maud Heald from Stephen Heald; married at Delaware, O., November 23, 1888; have one child. Cause, gross neglect of duty, drunkenness and failure to provide.

Tellie O. Craighead from Eugene F. Craighead; married in this city June 11, 1888. Cause, desertion.

Nancy Myers from Thompson Myers, an old and well known couple of Jackson township, married 6th of February, 1851; had 12 children, eight still living and all of age except boy of 17. The plaintiff accuses her husband of nearly everything that is mean; that he has threatened her life. The aged couple are well to do and although these charges are not a great surprise, they have caused a sensation in their immediate neighborhood.

BETWEEN THE GATES.

Between the gates of birth and death
An old and saintly pilgrim passed,
With look of one who witnesseth
The long-sought goal at last.

"O thou whose reverent feet have found
The Master's footprints in thy way,
And walked therein as holy ground,
A boon of thee I pray.

"My lack would borrow thy excess.
My feeble faith the strength of thine;
I need thy soul's white saintliness
To hide the stains mine.

"Thy grace and favor else denied
May well be granted for thy sake."
So tempted, doubting, sorely tried,
A younger pilgrim spake.

"Thy prayer, my son, transcends my gift;
No power is mine," the sage replied,
"The burden of a soul to lift,
Or stain of sin to hide.

"How'er the outward life may seem,
For pardoning grace we all must pray;
No man his brother can redeem
Or a soul's ransom pay.

"Not always age is growth of good;
Its years have losses with their gain;
Against some evil youth withstood
Its hands may strive in vain.

"With deeper voice than any speech
Of mortal lips from man to man,
What earth's unwisdom may not teach
The Spirit only can.

"Make thou that holy Guide thine own,
And, following where it leads the way,
The unknown shall lapse in the unknown
As twilight into day.

"The best of earth shall still remain,
And Heaven's eternal years shall prove
That life, and death, and joy and pain
Are ministers of Love."

—John G. Whittier in the Independent this week.

A new scientific instrument has been gotten up by Prof. Bigelow, which is called the aurora-inclinometer. By extensive researches he has found that the same law which underlies the working of electricity and magnetism is working on the sun, and that the sunlight is a magnetic field in which the magnetized earth rotates as does the armature of a dynamo. The instrument will be sent to Alaska, where it will be used in the study of the aurora, as it is there seen in the best conditions.

Miss Mary Handy, of Richmond, who is soon to marry a young millionaire architect of Boston, has been for two seasons the acknowledged belle of White Sulphur Springs. So great has been her popularity on the dancing floor that she was frequently obliged, a local chronicler says, to divide each of her dances with three gentlemen and then find that she was unable to satisfy the demands of her attendant admirers. She possesses a superb figure and the very "fetching" combination of light hair and brown eyes.

An enthusiastic fisherman in Connecticut enjoys the sport without sacrificing any of his home comforts. His residence is on the Willimantic river. From the back window he has strung a wire across the top of a tree. Just over a good "fishing hole" he has blocked the wire, and with a carrier and a reel he slides his baited hook, sinker and line down the wire to the block. The contact releases the reel, and as it unwinds the bated hook drops into the water and "fishing" begins. Sitting at home he can feel the nibbles and bite, and a quick motion secures his prey and pulls it along the wire to the house.

The largest check ever given in this country was that given by Jay Gould to Thomas Allen for the Iron Mountain railroad. He paid $2,000,000 for it, and handed Allen a check for that amount upon his acceptance of the offer. Allen looked at the paper that represented this vast amount, and said: "Isn't this a good deal of money for one man to have in one bank?" "I don't know," replied Gould. "Perhaps it is. Let me have the check." Allen then handed the check back to Gould, and he handed it over to his office boy, saying, "Here, boy, take this check to the bank and have the cashier certify to it." And the boy went out and did it.

Buffalo Bill's father, Isaac Cody, was one of the interesting characters of early Kansas. He was an Iowa farmer with a smattering of law, and when he moved over the border his rough eloquence made him a power in the Free State cause. He was dangerously stabbed in 1854 by one of a crowd of ruffianly "squatters," and his blood was the first to be shed on behalf of freedom on the soil of the state that bled so much afterwards. Mr. Cody's tent is said to have been the first that was pitched in Kansas by a regular settler, and on the site of it he afterwards built a log house that was the boyhood home of his famous son Bill, then a child of seven or eight years.

HAS ANOTHER VICTIM.

Vera Ava Finds a Defender in Cincinnati.

A Detective Who Has Taken Hold of the Case and Proposes to Startle the World.

Cincinnati, Sept. 17.—"This woman Vera Ava is no more Diss De Bar than I am. If she is insane then I am; and I'm pretty sure I'm not unbalanced. She is one of the smartest women I ever knew," said Detective Grannan at the Emery hotel this morning.

"Who are the Chicago persons that are paying her expenses at present?" was asked.

"There are none. I am paying them out of my own pocket. Hotel bills and all. I propose to get at the bottom of this matter before I drop it. My theory, well, I have one and when I get ready to give it to the public some people will be startled, a good many, in fact. I have no motive against the Catholics, nor in favor of Methodists nor Presbyterians, nor any other sect. I am doing it for my own satisfaction. There is a deep laid scheme, I'll tell you that much, such as in all my 33 years' experience as a detective I never met. On which side I will not yet tell, and it will implicate people who have as yet kept very dark."

"Do you know Llewellyn, her alleged Chicago agent?"

"No; but if he is not a myth he shall be found. I have never yet prevailed on Miss Ava to take off her wig. The story of the kidnaping never varies. I took a stenographer and several others last night to her room and cross-questioned her in every way possible, and under three hours steady fire of questioning, she never contradicted herself by a hair's breadth."

Miss Ava has handsome rooms at the Emery and has been supplied with a neat dark dress, but clings to her wig as usual.

"I will have justice at last," she sighed. Thanks to this good gentleman. I have suffered enough to appreciate my friends."

Bonds received at the department after that date will be redeemed and not continued.

"Notice is also given that coupon 4 1-2 per cent. bonds will not be received for payment at the office of the United States assistant treasurer at New York after September 30, 1891 and that thereafter registered and coupon 4 1-2 per cent. bonds will be received, for redemption, only at the office of the secretary of the treasury in the city of Washington.

"The circulars of August 24 and September 2, 1891, are hereby modified in accordance with the foregoing provisions."

FARMER BROWN WILL PLOW.

An Interesting Contest in Maryland.

Two Gubernatorial Candidates to Prove How Much They Know About Farming.

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 17.—Frank D. Brown, the democratic candidate for governor, will accept the challenge of Col. Van Nort, the republican candidate, to a plowing match.

Mr. Brown says: "Oh, yes, I am ready to meet my republican opponent in a plowing contest, but he must hurry up with his challenge and fix the date, as it will soon be too late to use the ground plowed by us for seeding purposes.

"If I go into this contest I want some results to follow, and I will not plow with him unless the land prepared is also seeded with grain for next year's crop.

"More than this, I am willing to wager one farm against the other that my farm shows better results of careful and thorough management than that of my eastern shore opponent.

"I have never seen Mr. Van Nort's farm, but I am satisfied that my farm is worked systematically to the best advantage, and cannot be excelled in the state. I have not plowed for ten years and have no desire to go back into the harness again, but I do not think I have forgotten how to do it."

THE BEST REMEDY FOR CHILDREN

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for over fifty years by millions of mothers for their children while teething, with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Sold by druggists in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

WIVES OF OHIO CANDIDATES.

The Wife of Ohio's Governor Shines as Brilliantly in Politics as in Society.

Governor Campbell has the advantage of McKinley in having a wife who is his ablest lieutenant, while Mrs. McKinley is a helpless and confirmed invalid. She is reported to be an interesting woman, by those who know her, and Mr. McKinley's attention and kindness to her are beyond all praise. He is a man well fitted to shine in society, and if his wife could go out with him no doubt he would take pleasure in the graceful, cultivated and enlightened society of Washington. But as she can't, he quietly gives it up and follows the path of good taste and dignity by declining invitations to places his wife can't go with him.

But never was there a man better off in a wife than Governor Campbell. During the time he was in congress the Campbells had a very pretty house on Connecticut avenue, where they entertained handsomely. And Mrs. Campbell is wonderfully adapted to preside over a public man' home. She has much wit and sprightliness; and as for tact—she beats the world. Johnny McLean might fight Governor Campbell in every issue of the Cincinnati Enquirer, but that would not keep Mrs. Campbell from having Johnny and his wife and sister to dinner whenever she liked and charming them by her grace and intelligence. She is a handsome woman, of brunette complexion, with fine eyes and a very tall and elegant figure. She thinks the world of "Jimmy," and if he isn't President of these United States some day or other it won't be her fault.

Governor Campbell himself is a man of many personal attractions. He is as handsome for a man as Mrs. Campbell is for a woman, and has a charming sort of good fellowship about him. He and Mr. McKinley are upon the most friendly and even intimate terms. During the republican convention at Columbus Mr. McKinley was entertained at dinner at the governor's mansion, and the afternoon before the convention met Mrs. Campbell drove up to the hotel where Mr. McKinley was staying and took him to drive in her handsome victoria. That was Mrs. Campbell all over—doing the popular and graceful thing at the right time. She can scarcely be called a politician in the sense that Mrs. Kate Chase Sprague was, who studied public questions deeply and was one of the most astute political managers this country ever saw. Still less is she like Mrs. Logan, who could rally the boys with the best of them. Mrs. Campbell's role is that of being the dignified, graceful woman always, and incidentally to make every friend she can every vote for James E. Campbell that can possibly be had. Governor Campbell is a lucky man. He is comfortably off, but not rich. He is in the prime of life, handsome, polished and winning. He has a promising flock of children—the eldest a young lady just grown—and his wife of brains and charm to stand by him through thick and thin. —Boston Transcript.

TO INSURE THEIR MEN.

A Scheme by the New York Steam Company.

Men are Suspicious, as the Contract They Would Enter Into is One-Sided.

New York Sept. 17.—The New York Steam company has lately posted in all stations what it terms "an important notice." Printed in type that would not disgrace a circus poster, the notice begins thus:

"A proposition has been made to the New York Steam Company by the largest capitalized Accident Insurance Company in the United States, of such an attractive nature that we deem it important to place the matter before our employes. This Insurance Company will not insure individually any number of workmen, but require every employe to be insured, and if after careful consideration of the advantages to be derived therefrom our employees request its adoption, the New York Steam Company will make the contract with the Insurance Company, and will pay the deficiency between the cost to our employees and the premium charged by the Insurance Company.

"The proposition will enable all our employes to secure accident insurance, and thus make provision for themselves, wives and families, at a very small cost on account of the wholesale contract."

The benefits that each employe will derive are set forth as follows:

"If accidentally injured while at work, at home, on the railroads or elsewhere, you can draw your full week's wages each pay day during total disability for a period of fifty weeks, receiving in addition thereto medical attendance free. If death results from accidents occurring in like manner the New York steam company by its contract with the insurance company will pay your wife or legal representatives a sum of money equal to but not exceeding one year's wages, and in addition thereto pay the funeral expenses and doctor's bill, but the total indemnity for any one employe shall not exceed three thousand dollars ($3,000).

As to the cost of this insurance the "important notice" says:

"In order that this wholesale contract for accident insurance may be consummated, it will be necessary for each and every one of our employes to contribute a small sum weekly, according to the table furnished below (see below), and it can take effect at once on your signifying your wish to do so."

Here is the table referred to:

"Employes receiving $1 per day will pay 15 cents per week.

"Employes receiving $2 per day will pay 20 cents per week.

"Employes receiving $2.50 per day will pay 25 cents per week.

"Employes receiving $3 per day will pay 30 cents per week."

The notice insists that no one of the company's employes need accept the insurance if he does not wish to. All the same the announcement has caused dissatisfaction. The employes insist that the acceptance of the insurance is compulsory. Each one feels that his position would be in danger should he refuse it. In proof of that they quote the wording of the notice itself. It says:

"This insurance company will not insure individually any number of workmen, but requires every employe to be insured.

"In order that this wholesale contract for accident may be consummated it will be necessary for each and every one of our employes to contribute a small sum weekly."

A workman of the Steam company, whom a reporter called from his labors on the pipes on Broadway yesterday, raised objections to the notice. He spoke with emphasis, and his fellows, joining in the conversation, freely aired their opinions.

"This is a free country," said one, "and no man should be forced to join anything against his will. Suppose twenty-four join and the twenty-fifth refuses. He will have to go."

"The Company," broke in another, "is doing this only for its own protection. Within two years four men have been injured and one has been killed. The company never did anything for them or their families, but the men took up subscriptions for them."

"That's true as gospel," exclaimed a third workman. "Besides, this insurance will stand good only while we are in the company's employ. What becomes of the money we may have paid in if we are discharged on some pretext or other?"

There would seem to be an organized opposition among the workmen to the acceptance of the insurance. On the blank posted in the Steam Company's "station B," on Washington street, there was not a single signature in favor of the scheme.

REAR END COLLISION.

San Francisco, Sept. 17.—A freight train ran into the rear of the Los Angelos express near Girard last night. Wm. Harney, manager of the Golden Gate woolen mills, who was standing on the rear platform of the last car of the express, was killed, and A. C. Baldwin, of Los Angelos, was injured about the head. Mrs. Healy, of Los Angelos, and Miss Sprong, of Illinois, were seriously hurt. A disregard of flag rules led to the accident.

TWO MEN LOST THEIR LIVES.

New York, Sept. 17.—It is now almost certain that two men—John Ausdelman, aged 62, and his son Louis, aged 33—were burned to death in the destruction of the old Commercial Advertiser building yesterday. They had offices in the building and are missing.

TERRIBLE DISASTER.
The Lesson We Should Learn.

A stream of water trickled through a Holland dike. The small leak remained unheeded, as too small for notice. It gradually enlarged, became a torrent, the dike was undermined, until the embankment gave way and the flood overwhelmed the city. Careless neglect sacrificed thousands of lives. By similar heedless neglect many lives are sacrificed by disease. All fatal diseases follow neglect of the first symptoms. The person has malaria, debility, is weak, nervous, tired, run down. Sleepless nights and tired waking mornings follow, with bad taste in mouth, dull head, lack of vim, constipation, indigestion or kidney and liver trouble.
You neglect these symptoms at your peril, for they may run into incurable disease. Use immediately that wonderful remedy, Dr. Greene's Nervura, the pure, vegetable medicine which restores vigor to tired brain, strength to weak and shattered nerves, vitality and health to the exhausted body.

Do not fail to follow the above advice and prevent danger before it is too late.
"My wife had poor blood, was weak, nervous, debilitated and half crazy. She had female weakness and her kidneys were very bad. Dr Greene's Nervura has completely cured her. She thanks God that I bought her Dr. Greene's Nervura.
N. R. KING, Danvers, Mass."
N. B. Dr. Greene, the successful specialist in curing all forms of nervous and chronic diseases, 35 W. 14th Street, New York, can be consulted free, personally, or by letter. Call or write him about your case, or send for symptom blank to fill out, and a letter fully explaining your disease, giving advice, etc., will be returned free.

SCROFULA
Is that impurity of the blood which produces unsightly lumps or swellings in the neck; which causes running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which develops ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or "humors;" which, fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. It is the most ancient of all diseases, and very few persons are entirely free from it.
How Can It Be CURED
By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. If you suffer from scrofula, try Hood's Sarsaparilla.
"Every spring my wife and children have been troubled with scrofula, my little boy, three years old, being a terrible sufferer. Last spring he was one mass of sores from head to feet. We all took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and all have been cured of the scrofula. My little boy is entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy." W. B. LOOKING UPWARD.

Toledo's Real Estate Market in Better Shape.

Good Demand for Houses—Extension of City Limits—Transfers Recorded for the Week.

Activity in the real estate market is improving every day. There is a very fair demand for all kinds of property, though sales ranging from $300 to $800 were in the majority. However, the instruments filed at the recorder's office this week show a splendid movement of high priced property, there being over fifteen sales recorded between $1,000 and $4,000, which shows that the demand for this kind of property is increasing.

Inquiry is excellent, especially with regard to parties living outside of the city. Strangers are in the city every day looking up prospects of locating in Toledo They know the city is growing fast and substantially, and investment in property within her limits is perfectly safe, and sure to make valuable returns.

Business enterprise is also receiving attention. Numerous solid industries are desirous of locating in Toledo, attracted by the many valuable advantages afforded, which are essential to the welfare of any business. The shipping facilities, both rail and marine, are of the best, fuel of all kind the cheapest, and a splendid market for the purchase of lumber and building material of any description. Toledo most certainly has a future great.

Should be Annexed.

"Property owners and residents in the vicinity of Air Line Junction are anxious to be incorporated with Toledo," said Clarence Brown. "I own some property out that way and am willing to have it brought into the city and taxed along with the rest. The property, I am satisfied, will be benefited just that much more, in fact I think the property annexed will have the best of the bargain, if there be any advantage.

"If they bing in Auburndale, which I think should come in, we give them many improvements that would be impossible for them to secure otherwise. They give us the increase in population and taxation, and add to our territory. So it is a case of six of one and half dozen of another."

About Other Lands.

Ira A. Richardson recently returned, after an extended trip through the northwest. Every man to his own business, and Mr. Richardson looked into real estate with considerable interest, as he went along. Speaking of the more important incidents of the trip, while in conversation with a Bee, Mr. Richardson said: "I visited a great many points in Wisconsin, and of course talked with a great many real estate dealers. Not that I had any expectation of investing, but just as two printers will enjoy each other's company and talk 'shop.' West Superior is a hustling, thriving city, and is growing very rapidly, the improvements being first-class, and of a substantial order. Like Washington, it is a city of magnificent distances, being terribly scattered. I was surprised when I learned the state of the real estate market of Duluth. It is simply dead in the shell. It all came about by a boom. Outside capitalists went in there, boomed up real estate, and when they had made all they could out of it, they unloaded and pulled out. The result is the present owners have some fancy-priced property on their hands, with the market at half what they paid for it.

"Others can invest in the western booms, but I am satisfied with Toledo, seven days in the week. Property here has not been inflated by speculation or boom of any kind, and is just as safe an investment as any man could desire. To be sure, you can't get a fancy price for property, but then, it yields a good profit, and grows in value every day."

Streets Will Be Improved.

In the gigantic growth and improvement of Toledo, the streets are not being neglected.

Toledo now has the finest streets of any city in the state, and the good work going right ahead.

Contracts were awarded to the lowest bidders for the improvement of the following streets this week:

Paving Monroe street to old city line.

Bridge street, from Front street to dock line of Maumee river.

Collingwood avenue, from Detroit avenue to bridge over Ottawa river.

Contracts for the construction of sewers were also awarded as follows:

Sewer No. 383, in alley between Nebraska avenue and Tecumseh street.

Sewer No. 384, in alley between Vance and Forrer streets.

The Demand for Good Houses.

Good houses to rent are at a premium, and hard to get at any price. This fact speaks volumes for the growth and progress of Toledo.

Never before have so many houses been erected in one season. Contractors began to build early, and the prospects are it will be kept up late.

This improvement has not been confined to any locality in particular, but has been general. Neither has it been a single house here and there, but whole neighborhoods and additions. Acres of vacant property have been transformed into thriving suburbs. Houses have been built by the hundreds, and they are all occupied, or contracted for, a great many of them rented or sold before foundations would be completed.

It is not consistent that the natural growth of Toledo would occupy all of these new houses, therefore Toledo must be growing at a splendid rate.

THE POLICE BOARD

Discuss Several Matters, Dismiss a Patrolman and Elect a District Physician.

The regular meeting of the police board was held last evening, with all members present. Before the minutes of the previous meeting were read, Mr. Pettibone, of the Pettibone Manufacturing company, of Cincinnati, addressed the board in reference to supplying the police force with their new style of overcoats.

The members of the board and those of the force who had seen the sample of the coat, were well pleased with the style. Action was not taken, however, the matter being laid over until the next meeting, and the home dealers will be given a chance to bid on the contract.

Dr. Fisher, of the health board, renewed his recommendation to the board, asking them to advise the council to pass an ordinance to prohibit heavily loaded wagons from traveling on Summit street, from Cherry to Monroe, except when really necessary.

Dr. Fisher also presented communications from the Pennsylvania and Toledo & Ann Arbor railroad companies relating for instructions as to the pool of standing water between Summit street and their tracks. A motion was made and passed that they construct two new culverts, one at the north and one at the south end of the pool.

A communication from the street commissioner was read, asking the board to enforce the city ordinance compelling residents on the principal streets to put their sweepings and offal in suitable receptacles so as to keep the streets cleaner, and that he would see to the taking up of the same.

The health officer was instructed to act in accordance with the ordinance.

Special police powers were given night watchman Frank Petts at the T. & O. C. dock yards on the East Side.

Dr. Beckwith offered his resignation as city physician for the fourth district, which was accepted, and Dr. R. J. Walker elected to fill the vacancy.

Dr. C. H. Mills was also a candidate for the position.

On complaint from Lawrence Lawler and Martin Zeck, Officers Langenderfer and Siegel were ordered to appear before the board at its next meeting to answer to charges preferred against them.

About this time the board was compelled to take a short recess to listen to a serenade unceremoniously tendered them by an organ grinder on Superior street.

Sergeant Scott's case next came up for hearing. Mr. Lang was not present to renew his charge against Scott, but sent two witnesses for his cause, and their testimony was almost the same as Mr. Scott's witnesses testified. Mr. Scott was fully exonerated. Officer McGarry was tried on a charge of drunkenness and dismissed.

Officer Moses Powder was tried on the charges preferred against him, which were not sustained, and the case was dismissed by a unanimous vote.

Charles Wegner was appointed as a supernumery and McGarry's place filled by the next one in the line of promotion.

After disposing of the matter in reference to the horses, and instructing the chief to purchase a car load of hay, the board adjourned.

CARLISLE-STUDEBAKER

Marriage Ceremony Takes Place Tonight—Toledoans on Hand—The Wedding Tour.

This evening the Carlisle-Studebaker nuptials are to be celebrated at the home of the bride in South Bend, Indiana. A large number of Toledoans will be present. The following ladies and gentlemen left this morning on the 9:40 train: Judge Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Cummings, Miss Bessie Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Wheeler, Mrs. Joe Bower, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Pope, Miss Brainard, Judge Lorenz and Mrs. Lorenz, Miss Gertrude Wachenheimer, John Gunckel, and Messrs Holbrook, Reeves and Scott.

Mr. Carlisle was a prominent member of the Onoto Yacht club and that organization sent a large floral heart made of white roses and carnations with O. Y. C. imbedded in it in pink roses. It was a handsome piece, the work of Florist Heinl.

Mr. and Mrs. Carlisle are to take one of the grandest wedding tours imaginable. Mr. Carlisle was in the general office of the Toledo & Ohio Central railroad system in this city, and is a well known railroad man. He and his wife with their party will board Judge Burke's private car, which has been placed at their disposal, and will spend three months on the rail, visiting every point of interest in Mexico, California and the west.

They will carry their own chef and servants, and will live entirely on the rail. It will be a magnificent trip, and would cost an ordinary traveler something like $75,000 to take one like it.

LAST EVENING'S OPERA.

A Large Audience Witnesses the Little Tycoon's Farewell Appearance.

A fashionable audience filled nearly every seat at Wheeler's last evening, on the occasion of the farewell performance of the Little Tycoon in this city. The music was very well rendered, but outside of R. E. Graham, Mamie Cerbi, Joseph Mealey and Alice Hosmer the acting was flat. Banks Winter, of minstrel fame, appeared as Alvin Barry. He has a magnificent voice, but is a little stiff in the rendition of his lines, and falls far short of the comedy business required to make the Tycoon a go in the last act. Bessie Bronson as Violet sang well, but was also painfully stiff. She had one position of clasping her hands under her chin that she adapted to all circumstances. Graham as Knickerbocker was first class, and his songs were all enthusiastically encored. Miss Hosmer has appeared here before as Miss Hurricane. She is very clever and her work was enjoyed and appreciated. Mamie Cerbi as Dolly was bright and pretty and made an impression on her first entrance: The Little Tycoon has seen its best days. The public has heard it time and time again, and goes away whistling just one tune—"Love Comes Like a Summer Sigh." There don't seem to be much else that is catchy except perhaps the Dolphin step and "When I Was a Boy." Next season Graham is to appear in his new operatic comedy, "Larry the Lord."

Erie County's Fair a Pronounced Success.

A New People's Party Club in the Field.

Short Line Officials Discussing Ways and Means for Finishing Their Railroad.

Sandusky, Sept. 17.—(Special)—The county fair this week has been an immense success, in point of exhibits and attendance, and has far excelled all former efforts.

The finest of weather, with just a sufficient number of showers to lay the dust, has characterized the week, and the crowds have been enormous.

Every department is complete. The art needle-work, some of the most intricate and unique, on the finest of fabrics, is perfectly lovely and attracts large crowds of ladies, exciting universal admiration. The races come in for a share of the attention, many of society's devotees viewing them with great interest.

Footpads are making things lively in our city, and within the last week several men have been sandbagged and robbed of their money and valuables. Officers have been searching for the fellows but at last accounts have no clue to the perpetrators.

At Trades Assembly hall a new club has been organized with 40 members, and will be known as the People's party club. Myron Johns was elected president; Jacob Holl secretary, and Chas. Schaub, treasurer. Six gentlemen were appointed as a management and business committee to secure speakers and to attend to all business matters.

The mass meeting on Thursday afternoon at the hall was addressed by Mr. Ralph Beaumont, a well-known labor organizer of Washington, and the county convention will be held September 26, at Trades Assembly hall.

Tuesday, September 22, the democratic caucuses will be held for the election of delegates to the county convention and September 26 the convention will be held at Fisher's hall.

The funeral of Mrs. Calvin Caswell occurred Tuesday afternoon at Margaretta, a large number of Sandusky friends attending. Deceased was 70 years old, a lady greatly esteemed and her death carries keen sorrow to many hearts in this city where she is well known.

A private meeting of the officials of the Short Line railroad was held at their office on Columbus avenue, and it is probable that negotiations will soon be made with a view to arranging for the continuing of work along the entire line.

The Sandusky Construction company had the contract for the building of the road and negotiations have been on foot for some time, and it is probable that the Lake Erie Construction company, in which eastern capitalists are interested, will assume the further building of the road from a point at Bellevue where the present company has finished grading.

The general offices and headquarters of the new company will be in this city.

For many months there has been trouble in the Presbyterian church owing to some dissatisfaction that has existed among some of the members of the congregation. Rev. D. E. Bierce, the pastor, having become tired of the opposing element, formally resigned the pastorate. Much sorrow was manifested among the parishioners and the good wishes of a host of friends will follow him.

The Wayne Street Baptist church contemplate building a new church, a fund being raised for that purpose.

Mayor Buerkle has received a communication from the World's Fair committee, asking him to appoint two agents in this city. He has selected Mrs. A. W. Miller and Mr. A. W. Prout, who will be pleased to furnish any information about the coming great event at Chicago.

Mr. Louis Duennisch, it is thought, will be a candidate before the democratic convention for the nomination for treasurer.

THRILLING ADVENTURE

With a Maneating Tiger in the Indian Jungles.

The Killing of a Beast Who Had Devoured Forty-Three People.

We had almost reached the source of the Nerbudda river in the province of Bengal, India, when we heard of a man-eating tiger which had terrorized a space of country as large as any two counties in the state of New York. The Bengal tiger is held up by showmen and others to be the largest and fiercest in India. While this is not a fact, as all tigers are alike in disposition, and when full grown do not differ much in size, our informant put this animal down as something of a wonder. It was, he declared, the largest tiger ever seen in that district, and the animal was positively without fear. There were five native villages in the district where he roamed, and in five months he had killed and devoured over 40 people. He had finally grown so bold that most of the people had fled from the district, while the area of cultivated land had been reduced by two-thirds.

No foreigner can understand the feelings of a native of India towards this dreaded animal, the tiger. Fear and superstition and helplessness are all mixed up, and between them the beast has his own sweet way until some white man comes along and offers to rid the district of the terrible pest. The idea of whole villages being abandoned because a tiger was prowling around strikes one as absurd, but such had been the case there, and not the slightest effort had been made to kill the beast. He had become so emboldened that he would enter a village by daylight, select his victim and trot away with the poor wretch unmindful of the bullabaloo raised by the terrified villagers who had escaped his teeth and claws.

Next morning, after receiving the news, we broke camp and marched across the country to one of the villages, arriving there about mid-afternoon. We found the entire populace shut up in their cabins and in mortal terror, as the beast had visited them the night before, broken into a cabin and killed three persons. One of these—a man—had been dragged off to the thickets, leaving a plain trail.

The village consisted of about eighty huts, which were scattered over two acres of ground. To the west of it was a densely wooded country, and the thickets came down to within a few rods of the huts. The tiger had his lair in this forest, and always came down along a nullah or creek, which was dry at that season.

It is a fact that has been verified a hundred times that a man-eating tiger somehow discovers the presence of white hunters about. This fellow had been in the habit of walking into the village daily for two weeks, but we knew that he need not be expected on the first night of our arrival. We watched for him at three different points, but everything was as quiet as if he had fled the neighborhood. Next day we laid our plans. The tiger might come by the nullah again, but it was more than probable that he would take some other route. I was to occupy a hut at the head of the village, the judge one in the centre and the colonel was to be intrenched so as to cover the usual approach.

The tents were very primitive affairs, being made of light poles and having thatched roofs. The one I occupied belonged to the family recently slaughtered by the tiger. Though knowing the great risk they ran, they had left a window at the back end unguarded. The animal had leaped in through this hole, which was eight feet above the earth, and, after killing the man, had attacked wife and child singly from a desire to slay. He had gone out of the window holding to the man's body, and had even walked through the village carrying the dead in his mouth as a cat does a mouse.

During the day they told us several stories showing the remarkable boldness and ferocity of the beast. On his first appearance in the neighborhood he had waylaid three women going to a spring for water. This was about an hour before sundown. He killed two and terribly clawed the third before she got away. He did not drag the bodies away or eat any portion of them, and that was proof that he killed for the sake of killing and was far more dangerous than the average man-eater.

The day being cloudy, the tiger would probably visit the village a little earlier than usual, if at all. At 4 o'clock we ordered all the people to retire to their tents, and soon thereafter the three of us took up our stations, each of us having a man to keep us company. My hut was broadside to the thicket, but the door faced the other way. There was a large window at one end about eight feet from the ground, and doors and window were well secured. Several port-holes had been made in the walls, and I felt that I could give a good account of the tiger should he appear in my neighborhood. It cleared off at sunset, and a full moon came up to make the village light as day. While I watched at the back of the hut the native took the front, but after two long hours had gone by without an alarm he came over to me and said:

"The beast knows the white hunters are here, and he dare not show his face. He may even have left the neighborhood."

I lay back on my elbow on the dirt floor to converse with him, and a quarter of an hour had slipped away when we heard a heavy breathing at the door of the hut. This door, or opening, had been made secure with poles placed up and down and across. The squares were about six inches in diameter, and as we turned our heads it was to find the tiger's nose thrust through one of these openings. The brute had got into the village without any one seeing him, and our first intimation of his presence was a snuffling growl. There he stood, looking in the moonlight as big as a yearling steer, and as we turned on him he uttered a growl which paralyzed me for thirty seconds.

"Shoot, Sahib—for God's sake, shoot him!" cried the native, as he grovelled on the floor in terror.

I had to struggle up and get my rifle, which was leaning against the wall, and by the time I had it in hand and had turned about the beast was gone. We knew where he had gone to, though. He had sprung upon the roof, and as he trotted about his weight shook the cabin to it foundations. The cunning old beast knew what I was there for, and he didn't propose to become a target. After walking about for three or four minutes he coolly lay down and rolled about, as if in play. The dry grasses may have tickled his hide, for he set up a loud purring, and seemed to be greatly enjoying himself.

I set the native, who had a shotgun, at one of the port-holes, and I took another myself, but the tiger seemed to divine our positions. When he finally leaped down it was at such a point that we could not reach him. We could follow him with our eyes, however. He went trotting down the street, stopping here and there to investigate a hut, and but for the native I should have left our shelter and tried to get a shot at him.

"Don't go, Sahib—for the love of heaven, don't go!" pleaded the badly frightened man. "Everybody is secure and the tiger knows it. He has seen us. He knows you are a white hunter. He runs away thinking you will be foolish enough to follow. Take my word for it, it is a trick of his."

So it seemed to be. We had scarcely lost sight of him down the street when we heard him leap upon the roof again. He had doubled back on us. After reaching the roof he remained quiet for five minutes, but then, hearing us move about, he jumped down and trotted off again. We just got a glimpse of him as he disappeared in the direction of the nullah. Three or four minutes later we heard a wild shout, and the native with me cried out:

"The tiger has seized some of the villagers and is off to the thickets!"

Every native in that village knew the danger of quitting his hut that night, but one of them, waking out of his sleep and feeling thirsty, decided to open the door and secure a drink from a calabash kept in a hole in the earth at the back end of the hut. He did not even stop to look out to see if the tiger was abroad. The incident shows the strange recklessness of the natives in general, and explains how it comes about that the loss of life in that country from wild beasts is so appallingly great. The man was no sooner outdoors than the tiger seized him and rolled him over and over. He was then gripped by the left shoulder, given a twist which threw his body over the tiger's back, and the beast came walking up the street with his burden as cool as you please. I could not fire at him from that side until he should reach the door, though we could watch him through the crevices in the wall.

The beast did not come quite to the door, but lay down just where I could not reach him and began to play with the dead body. He rolled it over and over, struck it with his paws, and in other ways reminded us of a cat playing with a mouse. Fortunately for the poor native, he was killed when first attacked. I was closely watching every movement of the beast, and by and by, as he rolled about he came within range. I got but one shot and that inflicted only a flesh wound. The instant the bullet struck him he uttered a terrible roar and rushed at the wicket, and he threw himself against it with such force that the whole hut trembled. Standing on his hind legs he used teeth and claws to try and pull the poles away, and he did not cease his efforts until I gave him another bullet. Then he sprang upon the roof and for the next 10 minutes lay there growling in a way to make our hair stand up.

Meanwhile, all the dogs in the village were barking, and every family had been aroused. The noise ought to have frightened the tiger away, but instead of retiring to the thicket he leaped down to the street, seized the dead man about the middle, and with no effort at all regained the roof. What I feared was that he would tear a hole through the thatch and leap down on us, but this idea did not seem to occur to him. He was severely but not mortally wounded, and his actions showed that he had been rendered doubly savage. While he was growling and mauling the body about I got his exact location, and though there wasn't one chance in fifty of the bullet hitting him, I stood beneath him and fired through the thatch. Oddly enough, the bullet struck and killed him, though in his dying agonies he uncovered almost half the roof, and would have been down upon us in a minute more. He was according to the official records, kept at Nagpoor, the largest and heaviest tiger whose death was ever recorded there, and it was put down against him that he had destroyed 43 people in that one district.—N. Y. World.

ABE LINCOLN'S CABIN.

The President's Boyhood Home Which He Helped His Father to Build.

Lincoln's cabin is in Chicago, and as soon as a suitable building can be erected the home in which Abraham Lincoln passed his boyhood will be placed therein, together with such relics of the martyr president as can be procured, and exhibited. It will be one of the permanent attractions in Chicago.

Several months ago the existence of a cabin built by Abraham Lincoln and his father became known to a party of Chicago gentlemen, and they determined to secure the interesting relic. In the latter part of June Mrs. Norah Gridley was sent to Coles county and visited the cabin, which was at the time occupied, and had for years been the home of John J. Hall, a relative of the late president. The Halls were well-to-do, and had become attached to the place, so long their home, but they were prevailed upon to part with it.

The cabin became the property of the Abraham Lincoln association, comprising George M. Bogue, E. F. Getchell, Willard F. Block, Jason H. Shepard, William B. Pettit, F. R. Southmayd, John Barton Payne, Norah Gridley and Nelson Stelle. With the property a deed to the land on which it stood and the one-half acre garden of Grandma Lincoln passed into the possession of the association. The purchasers have secured every link in the chain of title from the patent of the government to Thomas Lincoln to the deed of conveyance to the association. Among them is a deed in Abraham Lincoln's handwriting and the only known document in existence to which the joint signatures of Abraham and Mary Lincoln are attached.

The cabin was built in 1831, and is constructed of oak logs cut by Abraham and his father in the river bottoms and hauled to the spot where the cabin was erected. It contained one room and a loft, and is 16 feet in length by 18 feet in depth and 19 feet high. In 1835 an addition of the same dimensions was built of quaking aspen with a small storage-room of four feet in width between, making the entire structure 36 feet in length. Shortly after building the addition young Abe left home, but made it a duty to visit his parents twice a year, walking to the homestead that he might save the expense of livery bills. Then he would walk six miles from the cabin to the county seat and pay the interest on money borrowed from the school funds by his father to enter his land.

His last visit to the old home was in December, 1860, after his election to the presidency. He cut a log, split it, and carved his father's name upon the two boards, which he placed at the head and foot of Thomas Lincoln's grave in the Gorton cemetery. These humble monuments are gone, and the resting-place of the great president's father is now marked by a handsome granite monument. It was on this occasion that his stepmother, to whom Abraham was devotedly attached, said: "They'll kill you, my boy, and I won't see you again." She never did.

The ground on which the cabin stood will be encircled by a neat fence and the spot memorialized by a monument. The association will endeavor to preserve the garden, with its wealth of sage and hollyhocks, to remind mankind of the humble origin of a great man.—Chicago Herald.

TERRIBLY BURNED.

St. Marys, O., Sept. 17.—Jacob Young, a boiler maker of this city, was terribly burned yesterday. While working on the inside of a boiler repairing some flues an accumulation of natural gas became ignited from his lantern causing a terrific explosion and burning him in a horrible manner. He is badly disfigured, every particle of hair being burned off his body.

HUDSONS

In Our Boys' Clothing Room

Trade grows brisker every day now; 'tis the preparation for fall, and it is our pleasure to show you new lines of long and short pant suits, Jerseys, Kilts and Fall Overcoats. In fact the entire fall stock is now on our counters. Nothing new but that is represented in our stock. Remember, boys, that the double-breasted suit is the go this season.

YOUNG MEN'S SUITS

A good showing in the new shades—nothing finer made by the best tailors. A neat difference in price though. Ours are $18, $20, $22 and $25; you know theirs are $30 to $40; no better in any way. Then those fine black cheviots, Thibets and unfinished worsteds in single and double-breasted sacks and cutaways at the same prices, are perfect in every respect and will be very popular.

OUR BLACK CHEVIOT $15.00 SUITS

This genuine Slatog cheviot suit that we sell at $15 is equal or better than any you'll find at $18; there's good reason for this, Mr. J. L. Hudson gave an early order for fifteen hundred suits, our share was 200; they will not last long, and it is doubtful if we get another lot as good; cut, make and trim is perfect.

OUR $10.00, $12.00 AND $15.00 FALL OVERCOAT
